On Far Long Island
12 for One. One for 12
A New Great Flier
Psychology, Perhaps

—By Arthur Brisbane—

THIS IS WRITTEN on the 7:20 a. m. train from Montauk, far eastern end of Long Island, reaching out into the Atlantic ocean toward Europe.

That piece of the United States interests all Americans, for there, probably, you will land from your transatlantic flying machine coming back from Europe.

That far end of the island, which is now made into a playground by Carl Fisher, who created Miami Beach, will be the great American city "nearest to Europe" some day.

At present Mr. George Le Boutillier's excellent "Cannon Ball Express" takes you there in a little over three hours. But while Mr. Boutillier is still a young man, he will be running airplanes out there in less than half an hour.

You leave Manhattan Island, with the temperature at 90. Three hours later, at Montauk, with the wind coming at full sweep from the ocean, you find it too cold to sit comfortably out of doors.

Not a place for little people to buy lots, too long to hold it. But a big chance for big people foolishly eager to spoil their children with unnecessary wealth.

Charles Cunningham, born at Sag Harbor, nearby, conductor, collects the three railroad tickets that you must buy in order to have a room and work on the train, says:

"Pleased to meet you. I always read your articles. I was telling the boys yesterday about a piece you wrote two years ago, when you said, 'Now there are 12 jobs for every man. But the day will come when there will be 12 men for every job. So take care of your money while you have it.' I guess some of them wish they had taken your advice."

Probably some do, but it is not too late. Good times and prosperity will come back, and men now out of work will not be out of work long.

The country is the world's richest, and its wealth is not one-tenth developed.

Captain Hawks, who stands out now as CHE GREATEST AMERICAN FLIER, left New York at 6 o'clock in the morning, Eastern daylight time, landed in Los Angeles at 50 minutes past 4 p. m., Pacific standard time, keeping an appointment to play golf, at the edge of the Pacific, after leaving that morning the edge of the Atlantic. His flying time, all in broad daylight, was less than 15 hours, and he made five stops for gasoline. That will not be necessary in future days, with better machines and better fuel.

Henry Ford says too many of us are "looking for a Santa Claus" instead of getting to work.

There is some defective psychology and some Santa Claus hunting, undoubtedly, but many a man of Mr. Ford's age, 67, and younger, without Mr. Ford's ability or fortune, is job hunting, not Santa Claus hunting.

He goes about, his gray hair dyed a sickly black or brown, to conceal his years, and he is told, "We hire younger men." No psychology there. No Santa Claus hunting, but HARD TIMES.

Pope Pius, through Osservatore Romano, announces the formation of a "Pontifical organization for preservation of the faith, and the provision of new churches in Rome."

The intention is to combat Protestant proselyting in Rome and suburbs.

A cardinal will preside over the new defense organization, and the Pope imparts the apostolic benediction on all engaged in aiding the enterprise for the preservation of the Catholic faith.

Germany made a great fight while the war lasted, and has shown amazing powers of recuperation following the war, in spite of the Versailles treaty and the Allies' gold demands.

You understand that when you read, "Illiteracy in Berlin is only 4 per cent, least of all European capitals."

Of 3,000,000 books on the shelves of European libraries, the city of Berlin has 2,360,000, and all are serious books for students and research workers.

The highest rate of illiteracy is at Teheran, capital of Persia, 92 per cent unable to read or write.

The motto of Danton, French revolutionist, "Audacity, more audacity, always audacity," was, until lately, the motto of all earnest prohibitionists. They never retreated, never vacillated, but said to the men in office,

Missing Farmer and Wife

FEAR 2 SLAIN IN STOW FARM MYSTERY

Police Seek Bodies of Aged Couple Believed Hacked to Death by Killer

Stow, Aug. 8—Digging for the bodies of an aged farmer and his wife, believed slain and buried on their 165-acre farm here, was begun today by state troopers and volunteers.

State detectives directed the start of a grim, methodical search for the bodies of William and Stacia Stefanovicz, both 65, whose disappearance on May 21 is one of the strangest on record.

A sounding rod was used in the hunt, being plunged into the earth every few feet.

"They will probably be found buried close together," said State Detective Edward J. Sherlock, who, with State Detective Edward P. O'Neill, ordered a state-wide search for Joseph Stefanosky, 38, a farmhand, last seen on the premises Sunday morning.

FIND AXE IN BARN

In a barn this morning, authorities found an axe into which a new handle recently was fitted. This, they believe, may have been a murder weapon.

It is the police theory that the farmer and his wife were slain in their bed, which has disappeared from their blood-stained bedroom.

Files Papers

ENTRY INTO GOVERNOR RACE IS BIG SURPRISE

Precipitates Three-Cornered Contest for the Democratic Nomination

Andrew J. Peters, former mayor of Boston, today filed papers for the Democratic nomination for governor.

His action came as a surprise, for it was not thought he would run unless the field was "weeded out."

Peters' papers bearing several hundred Suffolk county signatures were filed at the election department at City Hall by Thomas E. Goggin, former Boston election commissioner.

ONCE DEFEATED CURLEY

Peters defeated James M. Curley in the mayoral election of 1917 and was mayor of Boston at the time of the police strike.

He is a former Congressman, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, former president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and is a director of the First National Bank. He lives in the Back Bay.

He enters the race following, and in part due to, the action of the New Bedford city Democratic committee, which passed a resolution a few days ago, urging him to run for the Governorship.

His appearance in the contest makes four candidates in the field, as besides Ely and Fitzgerald, John J. Cummings of Boston has previously tossed his hat in the ring.

A short time before the Peters' nomination papers were filed, Joseph A. Hingston appeared at City Hall and filed papers for former Governor Eugene N. Foss for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. Foss papers were filed at Worcester earlier in the week.

The Boston election commissioners also received Suffolk County signatures for certification today from ex-Mayor John D. Devir of Malden, Governor Allen's only opponent for the Republican nomination for Governor.

COAKLEY ASSAILED

"These developments follow closely on the heels of the announcement of Daniel H. Coakley that he is out for senator as an independent. Coakley heretofore has been a Democrat. He was a defeated candidate for mayor of Boston in the last two elections.

John J. Cummings issued a statement today assailing Coakley's candidacy as "a move to settle old scores with Fitzgerald and Curley." Cummings also declared,

"I predict that Fitzgerald will be buried so deep under an avalanche of votes that he will be harder to find than Ollie Garrett."

MASS. TO LOSE CONGRESSMAN

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP)—Massachusetts will probably lose one of its House delegation in the reapportionment of the figures announced today by the census bureau.

Previous estimates based on preliminary official figures had given the Bay State more than 100,000 persons over the 4,253,648 made public today.

Some comfort was seen for Indiana in the official announcement. The state probably will lose only one representative. On earlier census figures it had been figured Indiana would lose two.

The redistricting, which will not take place until after Congress has established a reapportionment of all the states, will doubtless lead to inter-party wrangling and perhaps a good deal of arguing within the Republican party, which will by virtue of its majority in the Legislature control the shaping of the new districts.

A special legislative committee may sit next summer to draw up

MARKET SLUMPS IN BEAR RAID

New York, Aug. 8—The stock market was carried down by a new landslide on selling today, to experience one of the most violent drops since the drastic deflation of June.

A long list of prominent stocks sold off $5 to $15 a share, and few active shares recorded losses of less than $2. Professional bear operators sold stocks in large volume, but general liquidation also was extensive.

The day's trading exceeded 3,000,000 shares by a substantial margin for the first time since mid-June. There were signs of short covering, but closing prices were close to the day's lowest.

Such shares as U. S. Steel, Radio, North American, Atchison, du Pont, American, Telephone, Stone & Webster, American Tobacco B, Warner Bros. and Westinghouse Electric were among issues selling of $4 to $8.

Deny Doomed Youth New Trial for Life

Hartford, Ct., Aug. 8 (INS)—Hope faded today for Heinrich O. Lorenz, youthful alien, who is under sentence of death in the State prison at Wethersfield, Superior Court Judge John R. Booth of Danbury has filed a decision here denying a new trial for the youth who is to be hanged next Tuesday for the murder on March 31, last, of Ollie E. Anderson of West Hartford.

Rich Must Share Ills, Says Mayor

(The third of a series of articles by Mayor James M. Curley. The fourth article will appear in Saturday's Evening American.)

By James M. Curley

IN CERTAIN countries of Europe it has been deemed advisable for the continuance in power of royal blood to adopt unemployment insurance, sick insurance and old age pension systems, and unless we in America speedily devise a system for the protection of the worker in industry, it will be found necessary to adopt not one, but all three of these so-called social reforms.

If automatic devices have replaced, and they have, nearly 3,000,000 workers in industry, it becomes plainly the duty of the federal government through regulations of hours of labor and operation of automatic devices to see to it that opportunity shall be provided for those seeking work and unable to secure the same.

Mayor Curley

Saving Wage Calls It Necessary

The proposition for co-operation among federal, state and municipal agencies in construction programs, while most commendable, is, nevertheless, but a sugar-coated palliative substitute for a major surgical operation.

The corner stone of American prosperity is the saving wage which assures the worker not only the necessaries of life for his family, but an occasional luxury, and, in addition, industrial prosperity.

The second Divine Commandment requires "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thy self," and certainly the present industrial and economic system in America gives scant consideration to this Divine

Seek Indictments for 48 in Stock Frauds

A secret investigation into fraudulent stock sales in Essex County has uncovered 48 cases of alleged swindling through which more than $200,000 was taken from investors, it was announced today by Dist. Atty. William G. Clark at his office in Salem.

Evidence has been whipped into shape for presentation to the Essex County grand jury. Clark also revealed that indictments will be asked against the heads of at least one Boston brokerage house and a ring of stock salesmen.

They will be accused of larceny by fraud, Clark said.

Clark declared the investigation has centered on the sale of stock in four corporations, three of them having headquarters in Boston. The salesmen operated chiefly in Lynn, Marblehead, Swampscott and Salem.

STOW COUPLE BELIEVED SLAIN; BODIES ARE SOUGHT ON FARM

ABSENT FROM HOME SINCE LAST MAY

had hidden about the farmhouse is a suspected motive. The couple owned rented property in Concord and had a consistent income from their farm, as well.

Corp. Raymond Foley and four State troopers with 10 volunteers wielded spades and shovels in the search, while a crowd of more than 100 looked on.

SEEK SIGNS OF GRAVE

A newly ploughed section near acorn field was spaded and probed without result and the body of a recently buried horse was moved from its grave in a north corner of the pasture while the earth beneath it was turned up. Search was also to be made beneath the body of a cow, uncovered nearby.

While the diggers were at work, scores of volunteers moved through the heavily-wooded land on the farm, seeking evidence of a grave.

Stefanosky's description was broadcast by State police, and search for him began in Hudson, where, on Wednesday night, he is said to have told John Slavic, a farmer, that he had $800 and was going to Nashua, N. H., to get a woman to help him on the farm. Nashua authorities were notified.

Police learned that from the home of Representative George W. W. Edson, who lives near the Stefanowics farm. Stefanosky made several telephone calls to a woman in New Hampshire.

In their search for the bodies the diggers faced the task of systematically inspecting the huge acreage, only about a third of which is under cultivation as a truck garden.

A large part of the farm is brush grown and wooded, and heavy foliage screens much of the land to be searched.

What investigators declare to be conclusive evidence that Mr. and Mrs. Stefanovics were victims of a double killing has been discovered since the beginning of the investigation of their disappearance, launched yesterday at the behest of relatives, whose suspicions were aroused.

Much of this came from the old three-story white farmhouse and barn, which face south, set back a short distance from the Old Stow road, in a lonely section of the town.

BLOODSTAINS ON WALLS

An eerie silence lay over the house itself, and in the second floor bedroom, where the farmer and his wife slept, bloodstains were found on the floor and wall by W. A. Twombly, a Maynard undertaker, assisting the police.

Strangest of all was the disappearance of the very bed in which they slept. This, police believe, was destroyed by the murderer.

Stefanovics, police say, told inquirers that Mr. and Mrs. Stefanovics had gone to Chicago, where the farmer was to consult a famous surgeon regarding a stomach ailment.

State Detectives Sherlock and O'Neill have interviewed Dr. Middleton of Acton, who treated the farmer for a slight stomach disorder and have concluded his illness was in no way related to his disappearance.

Relatives of the missing couple in Everett, Maynard and Hudson know nothing of any serious illness of Stefanovics and were not told that he was going away.

Dr. Middleton at Acton was the last person to have seen the missing couple, so far as police could learn. On May 21 they went from their home in a bus to his office and he prescribed for Stefanovics's stomach ailment, which the doctor said was not of a serious nature.

They gave the doctor no hint that they intended going elsewhere than back to the Stow farm.

None of their neighbors or relatives has since seen or heard from them.

Warren A. Twombley, Maynard undertaker, who had heard reports and rumors and county gossip, went to the farm, found nobody there and searched the house. His discoveries in the bedroom sent him post-haste to State police.

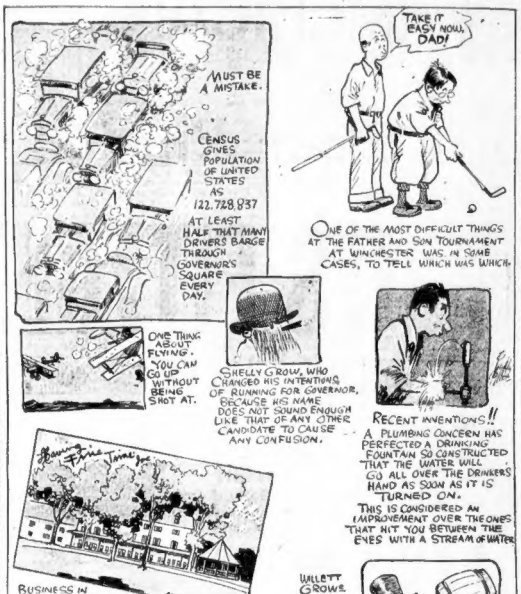

Mr. and Mrs. Stefanovicz came to Stow about three years ago from Concord. They had been here less than a year when Stefanosky arrived to help them work the farm. Little is known of his life before he appeared here.

The farmhand left the Stefanovics's sometime last year and went to New Hampshire. Police say they have learned he had had a dispute with the couple. He returned, however, in the winter and remained until about two weeks ago, when he left.

Ain't It the Truth

Aged Kin of Webster Facing Almshouse

Groveland, Aug. 8—The kin of two of America's illustrious men seemed doomed to the poorhouse today.

Town officials revealed that Elbridge Perry, 79, who claims to be a relative of Daniel Webster, and his wife, who is 86 years old and totally blind, and who is said to be a niece of President Franklin Pierce, faced removal to the town farm.

The couple have lived in a small farmhouse on Center st., South Groveland, for the past six years, coming here from Haverhill. Previous to that they lived in Atkinson, N. H.

Mrs. Perry was injured while they lived in a house on the river bank in Haverhill, when ice was swept against their dwelling by the current of the Merrimack.

She gradually lost her sight and since last spring has been in bed most of the time, according to neighbors.

The couple's only source of income, officials said, was $8 a month from a society that aids the blind, together with sums received irregularly from a relative in Lynn.

Mrs. Perry is said to be the daughter of William Pierce, a brother of the nations' only President from New Hampshire and the last New Englander to occupy that office prior to the inauguration of Calvin Coolidge.

WALES UNVEILS MEMORIAL TO MISS EARHART

Burryport, Wales, Aug. 8 (AP)—A memorial was unveiled here today to commemorate the feat of Miss Amelia Earhart of Boston, who, with Wilmer Stultz and Louis Gordon, landed here June 18, 1928, after flying from Newfoundland.

The ceremony was in charge of Sir Arthur Whitten Brown, who made the first flight of the Atlantic in 1919 with the late Sir John Alcock.

Several thousand persons attended, including many Americans who are visiting the Llanelly Eisteddfodd.

"We have welcomed home after many months our own Amy Johnson," said Sir Arthur, "a plucky girl who set off on a lone flight to Australia and succeeded so completely.

"It is but fitting that we should gather here to honor Miss Earhart, another plucky girl from the other side, who was the first woman to fly the Atlantic in an airplane.

"The airplane which carried Miss Earhart was appropriately named 'Friendship,' and it did a great deal toward cementing the friendship which we hope will ever continue between the two great English-speaking peoples."

The memorial is a stone column surmounted by a weather vane, the indicator of which is a model of the "Friendship."

Miss Earhart, with Stultz as chief pilot, and Gordon as mechanic, landed at Burryport 20 hours and 40 minutes after they took off from Trepassey, Newfoundland, in the summer of 1928. The goal was Southampton, but the fliers were glad to land on the waters of the little Welsh port when their fuel was nearly gone.

WIDOW OF BRADY DENIES PLAN TO BE NUN

Repudiates a Story That She Would Become Founder of Religious Order

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Mrs. Nicholas Brady today called her New York representative by transatlantic telephone from London and asked that he unequivocably deny that she planned to become a nun.

Reports had been published in New York that Mrs. Brady, widow of the late New York utilities executive and one of the wealthiest women in the United States, planned to enter a German convent shortly for her novitiate.

The reports said she was believed to have discussed the matter in a recent audience with Pope Pius XI, and that it was possible she might found and endow a religious order of her own in the Catholic Church.

Mrs. Brady is the sole legatee under her husband's will, disposing of an estate estimated in value at $50,000,000. He died last march. Mrs. Brady is a sister of Francis P. Garvan, New York attorney and head of the Chemical Foundation.

MAINE ALL SET TO FETE ALLEN

Augusta, Me., Aug. 8—More than 25 prominent Bay State officials and their wives will accompany Governor Frank G. Allen to Maine, Monday, August 11, when the Pine Tree State join in the tercentenary celebration of Massachusetts Bay.

Colorful ceremonies all along the route will depict the early history of the Province of Maine and the part of its sons in each crisis of American history. Kittery, York Harbor, Portland, Augusta and Skowhegan are the high spots of the tour.

Lieut.-Gov. William S. Youngman, Frederic W. Cook, Secretary of State; Maj. Harold Winslow and Capt. Theodore Storer of the governor's personal staff will head the Massachusetts party.

Governor Allen and his party will motor from Boston to Kittery, the gateway to Maine, where they will be met by Governor William Tudor Gardiner and his delegation.

There the party will be joined by Gov. and Mrs. Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire for the welcoming ceremonies at the Badger's Island end of the memorial bridge.

A marine band of 20 pieces and a company of marines, dispatched from the Kittery Navy Yard by Admiral W. W. Phelps, commandant, will be posted at Ranger Park, scene of the welcoming ceremonies.

Following the meeting at Kittery, the party will proceed to York Harbor, where they will view a pageant portraying famous episodes in York history.

After luncheon the party will motor to Portland where state military organizations will turn out to honor the visitors.

Manchester, England, Aug. 8—An old Scotch custom which demands a new kilt for a church wedding means nothing in the economic life of Sir Harry Lauder. When the famous comedian arrived here for the wedding of an old friend's daughter, he was asked if his kilts were new.

"I haven't got a new stitch on me," Sir Harry answered. "How could I buy a new suit and come all the way from Scotland and buy a wedding present, too? Still, I am getting quite a lot of rides in motor cars — free, so it has been worth while coming so far."

Helen's Triumphs Due to "Rhythm of Motion"

Berkeley, Cal., Aug. 8—The rhythm of motion, which she has acquired in her art studies and applied in her tennis, has placed Helen Wills Moody at the top of the tennis heap, she declared yesterday at her new bungalow home here.

"There is a similarity between tennis and art," she says. "Either, to be good, must have rhythm of motion. It is the motion in both that I love. Swiftness and sureness are essential in all sorts of sports."

Mrs. Moody is now engaged in art work in her new studio. It is expected that her work will place her in the front rank of living portrait painters. Her sketches were shown in Boston, while she was playing there last year.

MORE THAN A SCORE of Massachusetts officials and citizens, accompanied by their wives, will leave Boston early next Monday to assist Maine in its celebration of the Tercentenary of Massachusetts Bay. As the map indicates, festivities will start at Kittery, Me., and will continue through York Harbor, Portland and Skowhegan, where the party will be guests of Herbert L. Swett at dinner. In Portland the party will be received by City Manager James E. Barlow and Ralph D. Brooks, of the city council. Governor and Mrs. William Tudor Gardiner will have the party for tea at the Pine Tree State executive mansion at Augusta. Many other events are planned for the entertainment of Maine's guests.

WOMEN LEAD INDIANA MOB IN LYNCHING OF 2 JAILED NEGROES

BOTH BEATEN TO DEATH, HANGED

State Troops Are Under Orders to Prevent Further Trouble at the Scene

Marion, Ind., Aug. 8 (AP)—Two negroes, who are said to have confessed the slaying of Claude Deeter, 23-year-old Fairmount (Ind.) youth, and a criminal attack on his 18-year-old girl companion, were victims of mob violence in which women took a leading part, last night.

Thomas Shipp, 18, and Abe Smith, 19, were taken from jail here, beaten to death and their bodies suspended from a tree on the courthouse lawn. At 6 o'clock today the mob spirit had subsided sufficiently to permit Sheriff Jacob C. Campbell to remove the bodies.

TAKEN FROM JAIL

The negroes were taken from the jail by a mob that formed at Fairmount, Deeter's home city, 10 miles south of here. Traveling in automobiles, the mob came on to Marion, where many recruits were obtained.

A swift attack swept aside a handful of local police and county officers, who sought to repulse the crowd with tear gas bombs. Using heavy sledges, the mob smashed locks and bars and soon had possession of the negroes.

CLUBBED TO DEATH.

Women joined with the men in belaboring the youths with clubs and hammers. Some women in the throng tore at the victims with their fingernails.

Shipp was first clubbed to death. His body was then suspended from a jail window by a rope. Smith was next taken from his cell and beaten to death. His body was hanged from a tree. Shipp's body later was strung up along side that of his companion.

Today State troops were under orders to guard the jail if further trouble occurred.

Union to Entertain Mayor From England

Mayor Curley today received a letter from J. Arthur Moriarty, Boston Typographical union, thanking him for his letter to the union inviting them to make plans for entertainment of Lord Mayor Reuben Salter of Boston, England, who will arrive here to take part in the Boston Tercentenary celebration the week of Sept. 15.

The executive committee will meet Wednesday to make arrangements. On invitation of Mayor Curley, Leo F. Greene, representing the union, will serve on the committee.

Report on Slaying Goes to Washington

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 8—The report of the inquest board which heard evidence in the Coast Guard blunder slaying of Boatswain Louis A. Pratt by his service comrades will be forwarded to Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard at Washington tonight.

Capt. Simon R. Sands, first division commandant and president of the board, said announcement of the findings would be made public at Washington.

"Disobey us and you will be punished after the next election."

But now the representatives of prohibition in New York's Republican party coos as mildly as any sucking dove, begging wet Republicans not to spoil harmony in the national party by dragging in booze.

Increasing unemployment in Great Britain encourages Tories. They find a campaign slogan, "Unemployment doubles under Labor government."

More than 2,000,000 are idle in Great Britain, and that fact threatens the Labor party.

At least twice 2,000,000 are out of work in this country. But that doesn't shake our government by benevolent plutocracy.

Peaceful Stow Farm Believed to Hide Bodies of Elderly Owners, Missing Now for Ten Weeks

MRS. ANNIE BOBMIS, Maynard neighbor, whose suspicions started investigation. (Staff Photo).

FARMHOUSE WHERE William Stefanovicz and his wife lived, and from which they mysteriously disappeared on May 27. The police investigating, believe the elderly couple were murdered in the farm house and their bodies concealed somewhere on the farm. A missing farm hand is being sought by the police. GIRL ROBBED BY 'STRANGLER'

Salem, Aug. 8—As Ruby Tardiff, 22, entered a shoe factory on Goodhue street today, a towel was looped around her neck from behind and she was dragged struggling into a storeroom, where she lost consciousness.

When she came to, her wrist watch and handbag were gone, but the latter contained no money.

She did not see her assailant. The noise of the machinery drowned out sounds of her struggle and the robber made a clean getaway it is believed in an automobile stolen from a nearby curb.

After recovering consciousness the girl, hysterical, climbed out a window to the street, then ran into the factory and gave the alarm.

She was taken to Salem Hospital and later removed to her home, 179 Ocean ave., where she collapsed. Doctors at the hospital said she apparently had been almost strangled.

The stolen auto, a coupe of expensive make, with black body, tan top and red wire wheels, belongs to James P. Hale of Walnut st., South Hamilton, member of a brokerage firm.

VINCENT SKIRTON, nephew of missing Stow farm couple, who is aiding state and local police in an effort to find bodies of his aunt and uncle.

WARREN A. TWOMBLY, Maynard undertaker, who on his own volition, started the first investigation of missing Stow farmer and his wife.

Girl, 2 Men in Endurance Test Crawling 18 Miles

Texarkana, Ark., Aug. 8 (AP)—Crawling 18 miles to an oil well with a companion as "pusher" is a new endurance test that attracted two sisters and four men today.

Saying, "a woman can do anything a man can," Violette Grigson, wearing knickers and knee pads, began the journey last night on her knees.

All this started Sunday, when Gus Kennedy, nephew of Mayor L. S. Kennedy, wagered that oil would not be found at the well and if it was he would crawl on hands and knees to it. Oil was struck and J. B. Browne was forced by the bet to push a wheelbarrow behind Kennedy. They have covered eight miles.

Clyde Ethridge and Jean Elam, farm boys, thought experience in picking cotton would enable them to overcome the first starters. With Ethridge as crawler they have covered about five miles.

Plane Found in Bay

Berlin, Aug. 8 A mail plane from Stockholm, missing since Wednesday night, was found sinking at Askoe, in Valdemarsvik Bay, yesterday. Pilot and mechanic were missing.

SELLS AUTO TO KEEP PLANE UP

St. Louis, Aug. 8 (AP)—How fickle is fame and how fleeting is fortune. When the airplane St. Louis Robin came down at Lambert-St. Louis field on July 31, 1929, with a new world endurance record of 420 hours, 21 minutes, Dale Jackson and Forrest O'Brine were hailed as heroes and had earned $30,000.

Last night they passed that former record, but no one was greatly excited. Today O'Brine disposed of one of his two automobiles to obtain funds to keep the new endurance ship, the Greater St. Louis, in the air.

The fliers solicited funds for the new flight, but the fund is almost depleted. However, they expect to keep going and to regain fame and fortune by breaking the 554-hour record of Kenneth and John Hinter.

They had been up 435 hours at 12:11 p. m. (E. D. T.) today and had only about five days to go.

Connors to Head Medford Police

Daniel W. Connors, senior lieutenant of Medford police department, will be the new captain of that department, it was learned today. Connors' name headed the civil service list of those who took the examination for captain, and Mayor Edward H. Larkin had promised that the man with the highest rating would be given the appointment.

Second on the list was Lieut. Charles H. Ewell, acting chief for eight months, with Lieut. F. Frank Ward third and Lieut. William G. Golding fourth.

HAVERHILL MAN AMNESIA VICTIM

Haverhill, Aug. 8—His picture recognized by a former classmate at Dean Academy today led to the identification of J. Winn Ryan, formerly of Fountian st., Haverhill, as the amnesia victim, whose name Cleveland, O., police have been trying to learn since Tuesday.

Ryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Ryan of Haverhill, dropped from sight after leaving his home in W. 65th st., New York, to go to his office on Monday morning. Late the following day he was found wandering in a dazed condition in the business section of Cleveland, unable to learn his name or anything about him, the Cleveland police decided to have his photograph published in newspapers in that city.

NEW AUTO TAGS OUT MONDAY

Beginning Monday, the new auto tags to be used by the newly created police traffic bureau, to prevent illegal parking, will be put in use.

The tags are in three sections, one to be tied to the offending machine, a second to go to the traffic bureau and the third to be turned in to the officer's station.

The section sent to the traffic bureau will be filed, so that it will be possible to make a daily check, and thereby determine who are the persistent violators of parking laws.

These parkers, who have escaped in the past by moving from division to division, will be taken into court and prosecuted.

Negro Escapes Mobs, Dies in Electric Chair

Huntsville, Tex., Aug. 8 (AP)—Rainey Williams, 35-year-old Port Arthur negro, whom mobs made three attempts to lynch for alleged attacks on white women, was electrocuted at the State penitentiary here today.

STATE PROBES CAPE FIRES

State Fire Warden Maxwell G. Hutchins today launched an investigation of the origin of the several forest fires that caused damages variously estimted at from $200,000 to $500,000 in the Cape Cod region.

He acted after receipt of reports that several of the fires were of suspicious origin.

Two heavy downpours spelled finis for the fires early today, but to the valiant efforts of firemen and the hundreds of volunteers, men, women and boys, full credit must be given for getting the flames well under control, after 20,000 acres had been laid waste.

The first rainfall came shortly before midnight. The second came at 2 a. m. and officials in both the Plymouth and Bourne area announced the blazes extinguished except for the "under the surface" smoulder that will probably last a week.

The fire, said Warden Ira Ward, was the largest in point of acreage that the Cape has experienced in 30 years.

More than 25 cottages, three pieces of fire apparatus and seven automobiles were burned in addition to thousands of dollars worth of personal property.

The entire section will be watched until a heavy rain falls, fire wardens announced.

Two Women Escape From Latin Rebels

DROUGHT'S END NOT IN SIGHT

Washington, Aug. 8 (AP)—Despite a less pessimistic view of the extent of drought damage brought to Washington by Secretary Hyde, official observations on the protracted dry wave continued gloomy today as the government forged ahead with its relief plans.

J. B. Kincer, chief of the division of agricultural meteorology, said the end of the drought was not in sight, and it was unlikely it would be broken simultaneously in many places.

"I don't like calling this a catastrophe, but I don't like to think what may happen if the drought isn't broken within the next two weeks," he said.

The official weather bureau report of conditions added:

10,000 SURGING ON PESHAWAR

Peshawar, India, Aug. 8 (AP)—Ten thousand savage Afghan tribesmen today advanced against Peshawar in an increasing effort to break through the northwest frontier. British advance troops were in contact with the Afridi warriors this forenoon and bombing planes were in readiness to repel a general assault.

This city was threatened as it had not been for a long time. The advance guard of the menacing tribal army spent the night encamped only 12 miles away and scouts reported every indication of an intention to make an early advance.

Observers predicted at noon that a battle within the next few hours which might force the supreme issue, hardly could be avoided.

Must Produce 'Mixed Baby' Before Court

Chicago, Aug. 8 (AP)—A writ of habeas corpus requiring Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bamberger to produce in court the infant given them by the Englewood Hospital as their child, but claimed by Mrs. Margaret Watkins as her baby instead of the one given her, was granted today by Judge Robert E. Gentzel.

The writ also restrains the Bambergers from leaving the jurisdiction of the court.

Driver Held in Bail Over Auto Tragedy

Taunton, Aug. 8 (AP)—Francis Morrissey, chauffeur of the car in which Mr. and Mrs. Bainbridge Percy Clark of New York and Newport were fatally hurt in a collision Wednesday night, was charged with operating recklessly when arraigned here today. He pleaded not guilty and provided bail of $500 for appearance Aug. 11.

GIRLS IN NIGHT OF TERROR

Dublin, N. H., Aug. 8 (AP)—A night of fright, with animals howling, owls hooting and thunder and lightning above, was described here today by Miss Jean Alexander, 26, and Betty Munroe, 12, both of 61 Highland st., Cambridge, Mass., who returned after being lost since yesterday afternoon on Mt. Monadnock.

Unable to find their way down the mountain before dark, they huddled on the ground, prepared to spend the night there. An electrical storm arose, rain poured and lightning flashed as they listened to the cries of animals.

Eight men organized last night, but failed to find them. When daybreak came the girls found a trail to the base of the mountain.

ferred with the prosecutor in Salem on the advice of the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau.

Clark said all the victims told of misrepresentation by salesmen, a system used in all stock frauds revealed in the Boston Evening American.

The favorite bait was the promise of immediate high dividends, listing on stock exchanges, the usual offer of the return of the investor's money whenever asked.

As no grand jury is sitting in Essex County during August, Clark said he had considered calling a special grand jury. However, after a conference last night with his assistants and with State Detectives William F. Murray and Richard Griffin, assigned to the investigation, it was decided to wait for the impanelling of the September grand jury.

In the announcement of the results of his investigation, Clark said:

"The entire number of complaints that I have in my possession will be presented to the Grand Jury on the first Monday in September. On each of 48 complaints I hope to obtain an indictment, charging larceny by means of fraud.

"Regarding the officials of these corporations whose stock has been falsely represented by salesmen and the stock promoters, I will endeavor to have more serious charges lodged against them."

INVALIDS SWINDLED

"More than $200,000 has been carried out of this county by these so-called high-pressure salesmen. Many of the victims are aged couples, widowed women, and invalids. Several of them have been left penniless by these schemers."

While drastic steps were being taken in Essex County, Asst. Dist. Atty. William Sullivan of Suffolk County began an investigation into the operations of a Colorado mining company, alleged to have swindled a West Roxbury man of $2000 and a Back Bay nurse of $1500.

Sullivan said complaints of swindling in Suffolk County received through the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau will be given immediate attention.

"Victims of stock frauds in this county will have their case presented immediately to the grand jury," Sullivan said. "Through complaints turned over to us by the Boston Evening American Stock Fraud Bureau we believe we will be able to prosecute on criminal charges several stock salesmen. At the very least we will be able to drive the swindlers out of Boston and Suffolk County."

Hindenburg Greets Endeavor Delegates

Are You a Victim?

If you have been victimized by stock swindlers, the Boston Evening American, co-operating with Government, State and County officials, will be glad to advise you what is best to be done. It Wasn't the Heat, but the Moonshine, Bothered Her

Pittsburgh, Aug. 8 (AP)—Anyhow, Patrolman John Liptak is glad it — ain't the heat that made him see three hot-water bottles where first he saw one.

He saw Mrs. Mary Paister stumble and fall. "Another one," he muttered as he rushed to her aid. As Mrs. Paister arose a hot-water bottle fell from under her apron. Then another fell. Officer Liptak mopped his brow. Then a third tumbled to the street. Liptak gasped, and then something began to trickle from one of the bottles.

TRAIN CUTS OFF WOMAN'S LEG

Holbrook, Aug. 8—Struck by a train near Holbrook station today, Mrs. Elizabeth Rollings, 43, wife of a railroad man, received injuries which may cause her death.

Her left leg was severed below the knee and she received a possible fracture of the skull, in addition to multiple lacerations. She was taken to the Goddard hospital, Brockton.

The engineer of the train blew his whistle, but the woman, apparently unaware of her danger, was struck by the engine and rolled under the wheels.

PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

The situation at Commonwealth Pier is rapidly coming to a head. The latest development is Mayor Curley's position that the State should not take space away from Boston shipping interests, using the pier.

A three-fold investigation is underway by the Foreign Commerce Club, which has instructed its committee on warehouses and piers to ascertain the facts and make recommendations.

The first phase of the investigation will center around plans of State authorities to give more space to the engineers at the pier. The plans have progressed so far that bids are being sought from contractors, for the building of partitions for office room.

The second part of the club study relates to passenger matters. Several times there have been "mob scenes" when big liners dock, the authorities finding difficulty in keeping the crowds in line. The investigation will determine whether steamship companies or pier officials are responsible for the traffic jams.

The third aspect of this study relates to Commonwealth Pier No. 1, in East Boston. The shipping interests want to know if the pier is producing any income and also what its physical condition is at present. The suggestion has been made that much of the congestion at the other pier can be relieved by extension of the East Boston dock.

Joining with the Foreign Commerce Club and Mayor Curley, are the Boston Port Authority, the Industrial and Publicity Bureau, wool shippers and several private interests.

This situation eventually will be called to the attention of Governor Allen. A battle in the next Legislature is expected, centering around a demand for the removal of the auto registry and other non-shipping activities from the pier.

MORE GUARD RESCUES

Friends of the Coast Guard are pleased to note that the past three days have been exceptionally busy ones for the service in matters other than chasing rum runners. Wednesday, the guard went to the aid of four ships in trouble, and yesterday brought in one injured and one sick man. These incidents serve to emphasize that the guard is performing many other duties—some 16 prescribed activities—all of which come at a time when the guard is under fire.

NAVY BAND TO HELP

The U. S. Navy band from the Charlestown navy yard has volunteered its services to help the benefit fund being raised in the harbor for the Disabled Veterans Hospital Service, Inc. The band will play during the three-hour moonlight cruise of the Dorothy Bradford next Saturday night.

Capt. Hammett

Capt. Hammett has been warden of the harbor for four years. He has followed the sea for nearly 60 years, most of the time as skipper of sail and steam vessels. He has travelled world over, but likes Boston best.

Friends of the veteran harbor man are congratulating him upon his marriage last week. He lives in the Back Bay, but before his marriage he resided in Dorchester.

ORIENTAL COMPETITION

American and British shipping interests are watching developments of the new Japanese service planned for Boston to the Orient. The Japanese steamer Argun Maru arrived here yesterday, said to be the forerunner of the "fastest service" to the Orient. The Argun Maru will sail today, to be followed by the Kinai Maru on August 19.

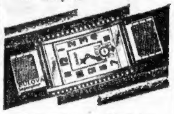

Harbor interests, official and private, are planning to study the situation to see if the competition will warrant any campaign to urge American shippers to patronize their own lines and those of Britain.

The Japanese lines, due to low labor costs, are able to operate cheaply. Their ships, at least those seen in Boston, are efficient in appearance. Those close to the situation realize that this Boston development is but part of an ambitious program to make Japan one of the great maritime nations of the decade.

"Just a few words of praise of your medicine. Nothing gave me relief and health as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. I am a practical nurse and was so rundown that I was unable to work. I used to suffer agonies at times and would have to lie down the biggest part of the day. After two bottles of Vegetable Compound I felt better. Now I have used ten bottles and feel fine. I recommend it to many of my patients."—Mrs. Florence Johnson, R. R. #3, Chetopa, Kansas.

CURLEY HITS WORKERS' BURDEN

RICH SHOULD BEAR PART OF LOAD

Unjust for the Burden of Hard Times to Fall Entirely on Workers' Backs

All Must Help Solve Problem, Mayor Says

THE SUCCESS OF THE MASSACHUSETTS BAY COLONY, the success of the movement for the establishment of American liberty, the success of the movement for the emancipation of the black man and the success of the Allied Forces in the World War, through America's contribution, may be traced to the principles and ideals of the founders, namely, co-operation, faith and self-reliance.

There is no way to justify requiring the workers of America to alone bear the burdens entailed by an industrial depression for which they are in no measure responsible.—From Mayor Curley's third article on Wages and Jobs.

admonition. In a time like the present it is well to remember that we take from this world to the hereafter only that which we give while we are here. An American writer has said:

"I'm going your way, so let us go hand in hand. You help me and I'll help you. We shall not be here very long, for soon, Death, the kind old nurse, will come and rock us all to sleep—let us help one another while we may."

The most valued contribution received by America as a consequence of the World War, with the exception of the retention of free government, was what has been frequently termed "The Saving Wage." To the "Saving Wage" may be traced the unprecedented prosperity which obtained in America from 1920 to 1930. The banner years during this period were 1927 and 1928, during which years the value of all products, either obtained from the earth or created in industry, represented $87,000,000,000 in 1927 and $90,000,000,000 in 1928.

High Wages
Boon to Workers

In 1927 the exports from the United States approximated about $4,700,000,000, and the imports about $4,200,000,000, and in 1928 the figures were substantially the same. In other words, during the two years of the greatest prosperity ever known in the history of America the American people could have lived unto themselves regardless of exports or imports. This great wave of prosperity had its birth in the high wage enjoyed by workers in America, resulting from the shortage of man power during the period of the war. The more general and generous distribution of the created wealth of the nation among the people of America was responsible for a more courageous outlook and a broader perspective upon the part of the fathers and mothers of the land. Its reflex was to be found in an unprecedented demand for more high schools, better homes, more libraries, more playgrounds and better highways. The prosperity of American industrial and mercantile establishments was due to the larger distribution of wealth in the form of higher wages paid American workers.

No thoughtful American is anxious to see a return of the bread lines and soup kitchens, but unless the present industrial problem is speedily solved they will flourish in every portion of America, and the money saved by industrial and mercantile establishments, through removal of employes and reduction in wages of employes, will be paid for by the owners of property in the form of increased taxes. In the wealthiest nation in the world, which wealth is due to the labor of the hands and brains of the people, there is no way to justify a failure to at least essay a courageous solution of the present day problem.

Urgent Need
Action Is Required

The success of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, the success of the movement for the establishment of American liberty, the success of the movement for the emancipation of the black man, and the success of the Allied Forces in the World War, through America's contribution, may be traced to the principles and ideals of the founders, namely, co-operation, faith and self-reliance. There is no way to justify requiring the workers of America to alone bear the burdens entailed by an industrial depression for which they are in no measure responsible. Surely a nation that has accomplished in a century and a half what has been accomplished by America should no longer hesitate.

An unfailing barometer of unemployment conditions is to be found in the monthly reports of the public welfare departments in the various cities and towns of the nation, sometimes termed overseers of the poor departments.

In Boston such, a department exists, its activities being conducted by an efficient and self-sacrificing board of women and men, who give freely of talent and time without recompense. The total expenditure for the department of public welfare in Boston for 1925 was approximately $1,200,000. The estimated expenditures this year, notwithstanding a public works program greater in volume than ever attempted in the history of the city, will be about $3,000,000.

City's Burden
Charity Demand Heavy

These figures are based upon the actual expenditures for the six months' period of 1930, which have averaged $250,000 each month.

The Boston Transit Department was this year authorized by the Legislature to construct an extension of the rapid transit system, and a proviso was inserted in the bill that preference be given to veterans of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps of the United States. On the two days succeeding the announcement that work would start the names of more than 1000 men were added to a civil service list, which already contained 5000 names. The proviso that preference be given to service men was made with a view to reducing the expenditures of the soldiers' relief department, which up to the present time this year represents increased payments for aid in excess of any previous year in the history of the city.

Tercentenary Pilgrimages—No. 52

HAWTHORNE'S BIRTHPLACE, SALEM

Salem is the birthplace of Nathaniel Hawthorne, who traveled extensively during his life. At 27 Union st., in a little unpainted house, he was born on July 4, 1804. In the northwest chamber of the gambrel-roofed structure the event occurred.

The house is old, its history antedating the witchcraft period. It was built by Benjamin Pickman, and came into the possession of Nathaniel's grandfather in 1772. Except for a slight change in the door and windows, the house is about the same as when the author lived in it.

The birthplace of Hawthorne is close to the street, rather untidy in appearance, setting on a bare plot of land. This land, in the author's childhood, used to be an attractive garden, but the place has not been attended as the average tourist would expect in connection with as great an American author as Hawthorne. It is not even marked by a tablet.

It is in a tenement district, falling into decay, and lacks charm entirely. Yet, here the author of the "House of Seven Gables," "The Scarlet Letter" and the weaver of other romances first saw the light of day.

However, the house on Herbert st. was identified with his early boyhood, too, and many hours were spent at intervals during his life in the southwest chamber of the dwelling. But homage should be paid to this birthplace so neglected, even though the Herbert st. home of his Grandfather Manning is better known. This, too, degenerated into a tenement house.

Fleischmann Faces $100,000 Love Suit

Los Angeles, Aug. 8 (AP)—William N. Fleischmann, 57, director of the Fleischmann Corporation and a cousin of Maj. Max Fleischmann, yeast magnate, today faced a $100,000 breach of promise suit filed by Miss Madge Mitchell, film actress.

In her complaint Miss Mitchell alleges Fleischmann expressly promised to marry her, and on the strength of this she accompanied him on a pre-honeymoon trip to Hawaii.

HEALTH PROBLEM IS SOLVED FOR MANY

They Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Daily

Constipation is the most common menace to health today. It is extremely dangerous in itself and is the source of many other complicating ailments. There is no permanent relief in pills and drugs. Many of them are dangerous.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed to relieve and to prevent both temporary and recurring constipation. If it does not, money will be refunded.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is roughage. And roughage in food helps eliminate the possibility of constipation. Most modern foods do not contain roughage. Two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily is the proper amount. In recurring cases, ALL-BRAN should be eaten with each meal. It is an essential in any reducing diet. In addition, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains iron, the blood builder. It is the original ALL-BRAN, proved effective by millions.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN has an appetizing flavor. Eat it with milk or cream, in cereals and fruit juices, in soups and in cooked foods. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

I wish to express my appreciation for the fairness of your expose on the unfortunate Coast Guard shooting affray on the night of August 4. The news printed on this occasion in your columns gave the facts, but at the same time indicated clearly in every way possible that proper steps are being taken to thoroughly investigate the matter and that the sentiment expressed showed sympathy for those in the Coast Guard in the realization that unfortunate and serious accidents do occur in an emergency type of service such as the Coast Guard.

In behalf of the Coast Guard in general, as well as myself, I thank you fo rthe fair and open manner in which this piece of news was handled by your paper. Sincerely yours,

W. H. MUNTER,

Mayor Curley Repeats Coast Guard Charges

Editor Boston American:

With reference to communication from Commander Stanley V. Parker of the United States Coast Guard, appearing in the Boston Evening American under date of August 5, 1930, I beg to forward herewith a copy of letter which I have this day addressed to Commander Parker, and which is self explanatory.

Very truly yours,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.
Aug. 6, 1930.

Commander Stanley V. Parker,
United States Coast Guard,
107 Mason Terrace,
Brookline, Mass.

My Dear Mr. Parker:

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your communication and replying thereto desire to state that there is nothing in the article given to the Boston Evening American by me that I believe should be withdrawn or expunged. What I have stated with reference to the corruption resulting from the endeavors to enforce the provisions of the Eighteenth Amendment is not only true with reference to the Coast Guard service, but to every branch of federal, state, municipal, county and town service, and is a matter of public record.

As to the future there is no reason to believe that there will be any appreciable change until such time as the existing amendement is repealed.

The point I desired to emphasize was that the Coast Guard service should be permitted to function for the preservation of the principles of every article in the Constitution and every amendment thereto, as they apply to the Coast Guard service, rather than wholly and solely for a single amendment to the Constitution as, apparently, they are operating at present.

It is unfortunate that certain, apparently well intentioned, Americans, labor under the impression that the Constitution of the United States and the amendments thereto are of dependent upon the observance and enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. To this doctrine I do not subscribe and I am quite certain you will find there are many other Americans who entertain the same viewpoint as myself.

The Coast Guard service, like many other branches of federal, state and municipal service, will continue the target for corruptionists and occasionally someone will be found who is susceptible, and because of his acts, reflect unfavorably upon the entire service. I believe this is most unfortunate in view of the honorable record achieved by the Coast Guard service, but to deny that members of the Coast Guard service have been entirely free from wrongdoing is not borne out either by the records of the service or of the courts.

It is unfortunate, but nevertheless true, that enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment is, and will continue until repealed, a prolific source for the corrupting and corruption of public officials charged with its enforcement.

Respectfully,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

Believes Hoover May Be Asleep

Editor Boston American:

While reading the Boston American this afternoon I read that some of our big battleships are to be scrapped.

What can this country or any other country expect to gain when we have to be dictated to by Britain. We all know the story why our forefathers and mothers left England.

Then, why in common sense do the people allow anyone to do this. We, a free people, as this country is supposed to be, can not answer our own questions. We, the people elect a President, and if he can not hold his own for his country, he should be done away with and some one else put in his place. I think Mr. Hoover has had time to show what he is made of.

But so far I am sure he has failed or yet he may be asleep, while this country is at its worst. I would like to sign my name but one thing holds me back. I have served in both the army and navy and have been honorably discharged some time back. But it does make me mad to see the way things are going on. SLEEP, HOOVER, SLEEP.

Dislikes Policemen Being Called "Cops"

Editor Boston American:

As the Boston American — the most fearless publication I know of—seems to be the first to agitate any subject of interest to the public, will you please, as a favor to the writer and, I'm sure, to many thousands of your readers, do what you can to exterminate that designation "cop" for our policemen. When and where the word originated, I do not know, but recent newspaper accounts of their bravery should convince anyone that there is no place for it in the dictionary.

In the past few months several brave policemen have sacrificed their lives while guarding the safety of the public, and it seems to me that the time has arrived when drastic steps should be taken which will serve as a warning to those inhuman scoundrels who value a life so lightly. No punishment is too drastic when you stop to consider the grief of the wives and children of those brave men. When duty calls our policemen, the safety of the public appears to be uppermost in their minds, and just how much serious thought are we giving to present conditions and what are we going to do about it?

I recall my parents' advice from childhood, "If you are ever on the streets alone and wish to be directed, always inquire of a policeman, no one else, then you are safe." That is how a policeman's calling was respected in "the old days." Today it appears to have changed, and while perhaps a few have brought the profession into disrepute, their bravery and courtesy generally is sufficient reason for according them the respect to which they are entitled.

Cool Wave to Stay Over End of Week

Continued cool weather was the weather man's prediction for today and tomorrow, while the skies will be partly cloudy. The backbone of the heat wave is broken and the weather man promised a cool weekend. The rain early this morning not only baked the Cape fires, but made the woods safer for week-end vacationers.

MarketWatch Tower

Steamed corn, fried corn, corn pudding, corn oysters, corn fritters, corn muffins and corn what-nots all deserve an honored place on August menus. The green corn season is all too short, and to my mind, we can't have it too often.

A favorite breakfast in the Lee family is fruit, corn cut off the cob and browned in butter, fried tomato slices, toast and coffee. Perhaps a strip or two of bacon thrown in for good measure will please the man of the house. Good yellow corn is retailing for about 35c a dozen, and if you do have a chance to get it right from the garden—well, you're luckier than I am, that's all.

Native grown cabbage, beans, cucumbers, yellow squash and melons are all plentiful and reasonable. Hot weather makes mushrooms scarce and high, but transparent apples and Astrachans are plentiful and reasonable too.

A rival native grown pie filler, also plentiful and low priced are blueberries at 20 to 30 cents a quart basket.

Lemons are higher and don't forget there's still lots of time to begin pickling water melon rinds.

In meats, beef and lamb are most reasonable, with undercut beef around 25 to 33 cents a lb (this cut makes deliciously tender Hamburg steak.) Lamb forequarters are 14 to 16 cents. Poultry is reasonable and so is halibut, and Massachusetts eggs are retailing at nearby markets for 60 and 65 cents.

Ices, and How They're Made

SOMEHOW, WHEN frozen delights leave Main st. for Fifth ave., they just naturally become "ices," and as such develop a new allure. But an ice may still remain an ice and be served in tempting forms for the delight of the family. Mousses are perhaps the most popular form of ices that we have, and here are three recipes for some particularly good ones which are actually as "rifay" in taste as you could possibly wish. These were designed for use in electric refrigerators.

PINEAPPLE GINGER MOUSSE

Soak one teaspoon of gelatine in two tablespoons of cold water, then dissolve in one cup of hot crushed pineapple. Add one-fourth cup of sugar, one-fourth cup of chopped candied ginger and allow to cool. Fold in two cups of beaten cream, pour into the tray of your mechanical refrigerator, and let freeze. Serves six to eight persons.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE

Melt two squares of chocolate in double boiler and add one cup of sugar. Scald two cups of evaporated milk and add slowly to the chocolate, stirring until smooth and thick. Soften two teaspoons gelatine in two tablespoons of cold water and dissolve in the hot mixture. Cool. Fold in one cup of beaten cream and freeze in mechanical refrigerator. Serves 6 to 8.

PEACH MOUSSE

Whip two cups of heavy cream. Drain juice from one number 2 can of peaches, and mash well or run through food chopper. Add to the cream. Add one cup of confectioners' sugar and one-fourth teaspoon of ground cloves and fold in two stiffly beaten egg whites. Freeze in mechanical refrigerator.

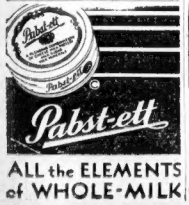

"SNAPPING" GOOD BREAKFAST FOOD

BREAKFAST TIME rolls around as sure as the day breaks and trains leave on schedule. Luncheon we may take or not take, as the spirit moves, or push it all around the clock, and dinner is sometimes more or less varied in its time, depending on whether we dine "in" or "out," but if you're a working woman or the mother and wife of working folks, breakfast comes up on time every day.

To vary the monotony of this oft-repeated meal, let me suggest rice krispies. If you haven't tried them, you've a treat in store. Put some fruit in a dish, pour some krispies over, sprinkle lightly with sugar and then pour on the milk or cream and bend an ear. Hear it crackle and pop! The children will be delighted, and it's good for them, too. Made of the finest rice toasted into crisp nourishing bubbles.

TO REMOVE SOOT from painted walls around the stove, wash carefully with soda water. Don't let paint get too dirty before washing or it will streak.

Tomatoes in Season Now

This Tomato Dish Tasty

The stuffed tomato season is with us in earnest and endless are the delicious fillings which can be made for this favorite vegetable. Especially popular at summer cottages and camps is a filling made of our favorite ready-to-heat-and-eat corned beef hash, a staple on most pantry shelves. This hash is seasoned to taste with salt and pepper, and to two cups of the hash is added a half cup of soft bread crumbs, 3 tbsp. of pork or bacon drippings, 1 onion finely minced. The tomatoes are filled with this mixture, covered with buttered bread crumbs and baked for 10 minutes at 400 deg. F.

They can be served with a sauce made of stewed tomatoes in which a cup of finely minced onion has been cooked for 20 minutes.

GLACE SWEET POTATOES

BOIL SWEET potatoes until tender but not soft. Peel and cut in halves lengthwise. Put 3 tbsps. of butter in heavy aluminum saucepan. Add ½ cup sugar and stir until a syrup is formed. Put potatoes in the syrup, turn until well covered, reduce the heat to a very low point and cook the potatoes slowly in the syrup, turning occasionally. In about 20 minutes they will be covered with a caramel syrup.

TO REMOVE old tea and coffee stains, wet spots with cold water, cover with glycerine and let stand two or three hours. Then wash with cold water and soap.

WHEN STITCHING georgette or chiffon, put paper under the material and stitch through both. You will always have a flat seam when the paper is removed.

How to Bake—Third in Our Cake-Making Lessons

From Martha Lee's Friday morning broadcast over WHDH by the Boston Evening American.

Having mixed our cakes, now let's proceed to bake them.

If possible, have separate sets of tins for butter and sponge cakes.

Butter cake pans need not be greased. Grease or oil the tins for butter cakes with melted fat, sift a layer of flour over this and shake off the surplus, or if you prefer (as I do), you may grease the tin and then line it with heavy oiled paper. To make this fit, place the pan on the oiled paper, trace around it with a pencil, cut it out and you will have a perfect lining for your pan. If you use one set of tins for all kinds of cakes, oiling or greasing is necessary every time.

Martha Lee

Fill the cake tin two-thirds full, having the center slightly lower so that the cake will be level on top. For loaf cake use a tube pan because a more even temperature is obtained in this way.

REGULATE OVEN

Of course, the temperature of your oven and the length of time necessary for the baking depends upon the size and kind of cake. In general, cakes require a moderate oven with a slight increase in temperature during the baking period. If the oven is too hot a crust will form before the baking powder has ceased to expand causing the cake to break open as the raising continues. If the cake browns too quickly, cover with oiled paper.

The cake should be placed in or near the center of the oven so that it will bake evenly. If you continually open the oven door you will let some of the heat escape, and, of course, the temperature will be uneven. If you can't resist the temptation to look in the oven, divide the time required for the baking into periods in this way: At the end of the first five minutes your cake should have started rising, during the next ten minutes the rising continues and the cake starts to brown. At this point it is safe to peek in the oven if you must, but personally, I recommend using your oven thermometer, a reliable recipe, and trusting the result to Providence, without peeking.

The browning continues during the rest of the baking period, and when the cake is done it will draw away from the sides of the pan. At this point, test the center of the cake with a clean, dry toothpick, straw, hatpin or cake tester, and if no cake clings to the tester the cake is thoroughly done.

THREE METHODS

In the cake mixing, remember that three teaspoons equals one tablespoon, 16 tablespoons equal 1 cup, 2 cups equal 1 pound, 4 cups of sifted flour equal 1 pound, 2 cups of shortening equal 1 pound.

There are three methods of mixing—stirring, which is moving the spoon around and around, gradually widening the circles until the materials are thoroughly blended; beating, which means moving the spoon from the top of the mixture to the bottom of the bowl, turning the batter over and over and thus adding air to it to make the mixture light, and cutting and folding, which means careful mixing in which the batter is dipped into with the spoon and carefully folded over.

In this way, egg whites or whipped cream may be blended with the batter without losing the air already beaten into them. For our cake demonstration lesson today I have for you this plain sponge cake, which can be successfully made from as few as four eggs.

PLAIN SPONGE CAKE

4 egg yolks
1 cup sugar
1 cup flour (pastry)
1½ tsps. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
½ lemon
4 to 6 egg whites

In general, for sponge cakes, use equal measures of eggs, sugar and flour. Number of eggs used depends on size. Squeeze juice from one-half lemon, pour over grated rind and let stand until ready to use. Beat yolks until thick, and lemon colored; add sugar very gradually, with continued beating, using Dover beater.

Strain lemon juice; add to mixture and beat again. Beat whites stiff with wire beater and fold half into mixture. Mix and sift together several times, the flour, baking powder and salt. Sift part of flour over egg mixture, carefully cutting and folding it in; then fold in alternately remainder of whites and flour. Be careful not to stir.

Bake in a slow oven (325 F.) for 50 minutes. This may be baked in tube, muffin or lady finger pans, or in dripping pan for jelly roll. A little powdered sugar sprinkled over top before baking will produce a flaky crust.

Faithfully yours,
Martha Lee

OATMEAL SPICE CAKE

2 cups sugar
1½ cups vegetable shortening
1 tsp. ginger
1 tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. cloves
½ tsp. allspice
1 tsp. salt
2 eggs
2 cups chopped raisins
2 lemons, grated rind and juice
1 cup sour cream or sour milk, or sweet milk
4 cups flour
2 tsp. soda, sifted in flour
3 cups rolled oats

Cream sugar and shortening. Add spices, salt, lemon rind and juice and raisins. Drop eggs in one at a time, and beat into ingredients. I prefer sour cream or sour milk, which I alternate with the flour, using a little of each, beating in between times, and lastly the oatmeal. Drop from a spoon, allowing a small space between the cakes.

Cider Vinegar for Sunburn

Right at this minute there are, no doubt, some of you suffering the tortures that come through bad sunburns. Perhaps at the slightest touch of your garments you cringe or maybe your children are kept awake at night because their tender little bodies have been too long exposed to the rays of the hot sun. All this suffering can be avoided by using a very simple recipe.

You can get this remedy at your corner grocer's. It is nothing in the world but pure cider vinegar. To relieve the smarting, stinging and burning sensation simply take a soft cloth, immerse it in a bowl of cider vinegar, and when well saturated place it over the burned parts of the body.

Repeat this process as often as necessary, always being sure that the cloth is moist. There is one thing important to remember, make sure that the vinegar you use is cider vinegar of the best quality.

Berg Wins Decision Over Kid Chocolate

MR. BOSTON
by JACK CONWAY

"Eddie Shevlin, former New England welterweight champion, stepped into the gym to box three rounds with Buster Price," said Mr. Boston today. "Shevlin is boxing instructor at Dartmouth and has not engaged in a pro battle since he lost his title to Al Mello.

"Shevlin is still a good boxer and taught Price many of the fine points of the game during the short time they were in the ring.

Tony Palazolo Has "Piece" of Hunt

"I hear that Tony Palazola is connected with the management of Babe Hunt who clashes with Jimmy Braddock in a ten-round bout at Braves Field on Monday night. Tony was formerly pilot of Paul Doyle who did considerable batting in Boston and New England rings ten years ago.

"Palazola is a keen student of the boxing game and should be an important factor in piloting Hunt to the front. Babe displayed plenty of ability when he recently knocked out Paul Pantaleo at the Wigwam.

"Braddock upset Joe Monte at Fenway Park. He has also knocked out Tuffy Griffith and Jimmy Slattery. I understand Braddock has been guaranteed $3,500 for his meeting with Hunt. He also has a 25 per cent. privilege.

"Hunt is getting 25 per cent. without any guarantee. The Garden will have to clear $13,000 to break even.

Indrisano Pointing for Title Ring Bout

"Johnny Indrisano, who has been boxing well of late, is eager to secure a championship bout with Young Jack Thompson, who recently dethroned Jackie Fields. Indrisano licked Joe Dundee at the time the latter held the welterweight title, but didn't get the championship as it was an overweight match.

"Indrisano then had his jaw shattered in a tussle with Clyde Hull. This made a long layoff necessary. Since hitting the comeback trail, Indrisano has been winning steadily. He would outpoint Thompson if given a crack at the title."

BOYS EAGER TO ENTER TOURNEY

It is noticed from the entries pouring into the Golf Editor of the Boston Evening American for the Hearst Junior Golf Tournament at the Wollaston Golf Club which starts on August 25, that the boys from small towns in and out of the State, out-number those who live in Greater Boston.

Of the entries which have been making the mailman look like Santa Claus on one of his busiest Christmases, the majority are from towns outside the Hub.

Many of these towns are filled with ambitious young golfers who are eager to get ahead in this sport and hear opportunity knocking at their doors in the form of an entry blank published each day in the sport pages of this paper.

ROAD TO FAME

They have sent them along and are now practicing diligently with the intention of winning the second Hearst Junior Golf Tournament and opening the road to future greatness. They are off to a big start.

It may be that the lads from the city haven't the facilities of the country boys to get ahead in the pastime which calls for wide open spaces. But small handicaps of this sort won't keep the ambitious ones lagging. They'll be putting down apartment hallways, chipping up alleys or driving against some billboards in a nearby field.

No matter where you live or what your opportunities, clip out the entry blank and send it along. You'll get a chance to show the world, and to find out for yourself. All entries which fulfill the regulations will be accepted.

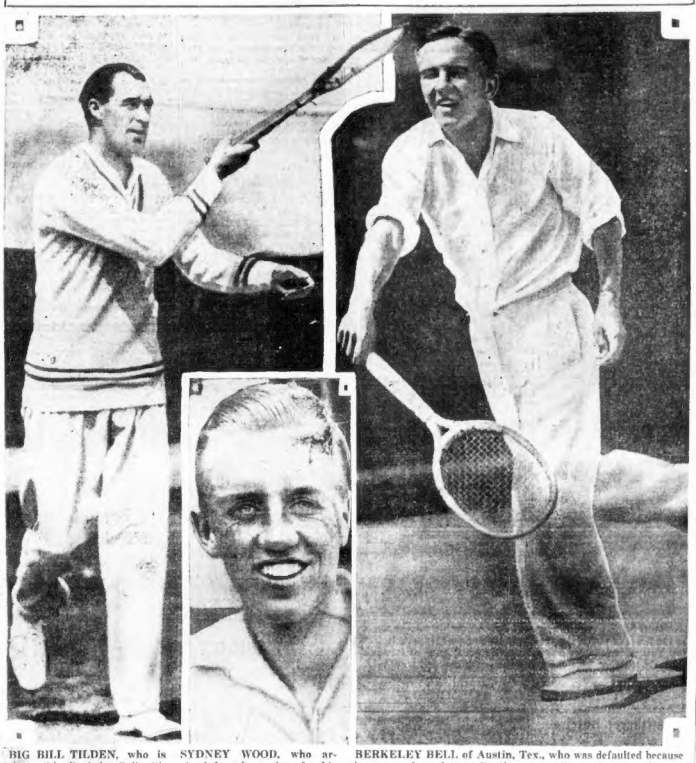

There seems to be (a few) difficulties concerning this tournament.

READ THE RULES

One lad inquired about green fees and if he would be able to practice on the Wollaston course before tournament time. Another stated that he had accepted pay after his 16th birthday as a caddie but wanted to play. Many more of these questions will probably be asked. If the rules as printed are not perfectly clear, the Golf Editor is willing to answer all inquires in this paper's sport pages as soon as they are received.

In the meantime clip the entry and send it along.

Gorilla Jones Is Choice Over Cuban

San Francisco, Aug. 8 (INS)—Manuel Quintero, Cuban boxer, will be a short ender when he enters the ring here tonight with Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., negro welterweight. The bout is scheduled for 10 rounds.

Shift in Dummer Coaching Staff

Dummer Academy in South Byfield, has inaugurated a thorough renovation of the coaching staff.

The new headmaster is E. W. Eames, former Deerfield Academy English professor. For football coach, Headmaster Eames has selected William J. ... who comes from Phillips Andover Academy.

Capt. Preston Smith, former West Point faculty member, who at one time coached the Cadets in hockey, also has joined the Dummer coaching squad.

Headmaster Eames will handle the baseball team and Richard Hearn, who won three letters at Deerfield Academy and captained the baseball and basketball teams, will assist in all sports.

Lew Levinson Best of Southpaw Golfers

Chicago, Aug. 8 (AP)—Lew Levinson of C...go, form-r Texas amateur titleholder, is the new king of left-handed golfers, replacing Rudy Juran of Minneapolis, champion in 1928 and 1929. Levinson, with a card of 75—75—150, yesterday won the southpaw title in the Midlothian Club's 18th annual tournament, with Charles Nix ... of Chicago, 76—77—153, second. Juran had trouble with his putter and landed fourth, with 157.

Because of an injury to Andy Callahan's eye, sustained in his bout with Johnny Farr on Tuesday night at Lawrence, his fight with Sammy Fuller, scheduled for next Monday night at Mark Stadium, Tiverton, R. I., has been put off.

Piazza and Adonis in Bout at Revere

The Cycle A. C. of Revere has matched Ooldone Piazza, the Italian middleweight, and Eddie Adonis of Roxbury for a 10-rounr bout on next Wednesday night.

WOOD-ALLISON IN NET FINAL

Southampton, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—Frank Shields, conqueror of Bill Tilden yesterday, was beaten in the semi-finals of the Southampton invitation tennis tournament today by Sidney B Wood, 18-year-old New York sensation, by scores of 1—6, 1—6, 10—8, 7—5, 6—4.

In the other semi-final, Wilmer Allison, Davis Cup player from Austin, Texas, defeated Frank Hunter, No. 2 ranking player of the country, in another furious five set match, 6—4, 8—11, 4—6, 7—5, 6—2.

Wood, who won the Seabright invitation event last week and yesterday trimmed George Lott in the quarter-finals here, seemed heading for speedy defeat when Shields took the first two sets with loss of only a game in each.

Wood never lost heart, however, and came back to take the third set in a long, deuced session.

Allison's victory over Hunter was not unexpected, but the veteran gave him a great battle, never ceasing to fire away with his famous forehand drives.

Bell Protests Entries of Tilden and Shields

Tilden's defeat will be regarded as poetic justice if the charges made against his entry in the tourney are sustained.

Berkeley Bell, member of the Davis Cup team, who was barred from the tourney because he was late, has filed a protest with the United States Lawn Tennis Association. Tilden was given Bell's place in the draw.

Bell also charges that Sydney Wood, who failed to appear on schedule time, was permitted to play. Wood is a nephew of Julian S. Myrick, former Davis Cup committeeman.

WARD WINS N. E. AMATEUR TITLE

Portland, Me., Aug. 8—Elmer Ward of the Norfolk Golf Club, Dedham, captured the New England amateur championship here by defeating the young Eastern interscholastic champion, Dick Chapman of Connecticut, 3 and 1 in the 36-hole final.

The veteran Hub golfer staged a comeback in the afternoon round, his opponent having a lead of 1 up at the end of the morning round.

Although a factor in most of the open tournaments in and around Boston, the Norfolk star had never landed one of the big titles until now.

His victory proved a complete surprise, for the field was the largest in the history of the event and included last year's champion, Paul Haviland of Connecticut, and Bill Raney of Brae Burn, New England title holder of two years ago.

Never a great medalist, Ward has always been known as a hard man to beat in match play, and it was the new champion who recently gave Freddy Wright his hardest fight in the Massachusetts amateur championship, Ward succumbing in a semifinal match, 3 and 2.

Chapman was a decided favorite and, only Wednesday, he broke the record for the course, shooting a 68, but his best was not good enough to match Ward's play.

RUNYON SAYS VERDICT IN TERRIFIC BATTLE WAS MOST UNJUST

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, Aug. 8—Little Kid Chocolate, the shiny black Cuban ring wonder, lost to Jack Berg, of England, after 10 rounds of desperate battling at the Polo Grounds, but in my opinion it was a most unjust decision.

I thought Chocolate won with something to spare, out-boxing and even out-slugging Berg by a fair margin. If he made any mistake, it was in holding back so much, but it must be remembered that this artful little thing was spoiling Berg nine pounds over the scales and perhaps more by the time they crawled through the ropes.

Damon Runyon

The veteran, Charles F. Mathison, one of the judges, voted for Chocolate. The other judge, Joe Agrillo and the referee, Patsy Haley, voted for Berg. The mob of perhaps 35,000 in the Polo Grounds seemed divided in opinion, but all agreed that it was one of the most ferocious brawls between little men they ever witnessed.

Chocolate cried when Joe Humphreys yelled the decision. His manager, Luis Gutierrez, usually a most voluble man, stood beside him struck dumb for once in his life. Berg's handlers, Sol Gold, "Whitey" Eckhardt, and "Whitey" Bernstein, gathered around the black haired Englishman in the ring and openly jubilated.

Berg Forced Fight, but Took Punishment

Possibly the fact that Berg did what they call the "forcing" swayed Haley and Agrillo in their judgment, "forcing" being construed nowadays as "rushing headlong at an opponent without reference to skill.

Berg kept plunging at the slender Cuban, but he was catching many a glove around the head and face and in the body as he plunged.

His style of fighting is to get in close and chug both fists at his opponent's body. He did this with Chocolate, but until late in the fight his blows were being fended by Chocolate's black forearms. Finally when Chocolate was tiring a little, Berg bumped him in the stomach with a right hand punch that seemed to hurt.

In the third round, with two blistering sessions behind, Chocolate came stepping out of his corner at the bell for the third as cool and confident as a master fencer and seemed determined to knock Berg out. He stood in the center of the ring with the Englishman and with his lips drawn back in a scowl and all his white teeth showing, he rained blows on Berg.

Berg Stood Up Under Terrific Attack

The wonder is that Berg stood up under the terrific attack. As a matter of fact he never took a backward step. After that Chocolate fought with some regard to his own safety.

He was never in any grave danger, but he could have done more nothing. Any very stupid fighter who just keeps lunging away in this man's town can win decisions.

Probably if Berg and Chocolate fought 20 times there would always be a difference of opinion as to the results. They would always put on a desperate battle. Berg can't punch, but he can take punches and he never backs up and for that reason if nothing else, he deserves some credit.

The gate receipts tonight were reported at around $150,000 which is good money for a fight that didn't mean anything but a fight.

La Barba-Mastro Battle to Draw

Chicago, Aug. 8 (U8)—Fidel La Barba of California and Earl Mastro of Chicago, generally conceded to be the leading contenders for the world's featherweight boxing championship, boxed 10 rounds to a draw here last night.

La Barba started out by winning the first three rounds. Mastro took the fourth by a shade. The fifth was even and the sixth was Mastro's again. Barba came back and won the remainder of the rounds. La Barba opened up with a furious body attack and drove Mastro to the ropes at the end of the 10th round.

Dixon and Cal McCarthy in 70-Round Draw in Boston

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

"THE LITTLE CHOCOLATE" LATER STOPPED RIVAL IN 22 ROUNDS AT TROY

By JACK CONWAY

Dixon's most famous bout in this city was with Cal McCarthy. It took place at the Union A. C., in the South End, on Feb. 7, 1890.

Jack Conway

McCarthy at the time was recognized as the American 115-pound champion. For a time he tried to avoid a meeting with Dixon, but when the latter disposed of all-comers McCarthy was obliged to agree to collide with "The Little Chocolate."

Dixon took on all-comers and by a long run of victories put McCarthy in a position where he could not dodge him any longer.

When the bout was signed it was agreed that the weight would be 115 pounds and that the purse should be $1000. There was also a side bet.

After considerable ballyhoo the little fellows finally swept into action. McCarthy had experience on his side. He was a fine boxer and a good ring general. He took things easy in the early rounds and made Dixon miss considerably.

When Dixon first started boxing he was more of a swinger than a finished ring artist. He liked to mix things with his rivals.

As was his custom, Dixon forced the milling. He missed many punches, but always kept going forward. In the seventh round, "The Little Chocolate" broke through McCarthy's defense and scored with a heavy blow which knocked the champion down. Cal got up immediately and resumed battling.

As the bout wore on, Dixon improved in his boxing. At times he outboxed McCarthy.

The flashy little Negro also displayed remarkable ring generalship. He was natural in everything he did while in action.

This is true of most great fighters. Even when they are unschooled in the fine points of the game, they have natural boxing class which enables them to make a hit with the fans.

SCORED KNOCKDOWN

In the fourteenth round, Dixon dropped McCarthy again. On this occasion, Cal took more time in getting up.

From that point until the 20th round there was some torrid mixing. In the 20th round, McCarthy made a stirring rally. He directed his attack to the body and had Dixon in bad shape when the gong sounded.

The bout then developed into a torrid battle. Dixon and McCarthy each tossed caution to the winds in an effort to win by a knockout.

When the 50th round opened, Dixon and McCarthy were still battling for supremacy. The crowd then demanded that the contest be stopped and declared a draw.

"Let the fight go on," said McCarthy. "I can lick my man."

"I want to fight," said Dixon simply.

And so they battled for ten more rounds.

At the end of the 60th round, the crowd once more demanded that the contest be halted and called a draw.

"I'll soon cut Dixon down," insisted McCarthy.

"I feel I can win," said Dixon.

The battle was allowed to continue until the end of the 70th round when it was agreed that the bout should be halted and declared a draw.

McCarthy and Dixon did not settle the question of ring supremacy until they collided at Troy, N. Y., on March 31, 1891.

Dixon had engaged in a dozen hard fights between his first and second bouts with McCarthy. He had improved in his boxing, which made it easier for him to get into position to score with his heavy punches.

BEAT CAL AT TROY

McCarthy was unable to hold Dixon off in the Troy bout and "The Little Chocolate" came through a winner in 22 rounds.

Dixon was then generally recognized as featherweight champion of the world. He ruled his class until October 4, 1897, when he was licked by Solly Smith in 20 rounds at San Francisco.

In this respect he was much like Eugene Crique, the gallant Frenchman who was beaten by Johnny Dundee within two months from the time he upset Johnny Kilbane.

Dixon set sail for a match with Sullivan, the new champion. The men clashed in New York on November 11, 1898. Dixon stepped back on his old fistic throne when he won from Sullivan in 10 rounds. "The Little Chocolate" was handing Sullivan a pasting when the foul was committed.

Dixon ruled the featherweight class until "Terrible Terry" McGovern came crashing to the front. McGovern was one of the greatest punchers in the history of the boxing game. He was particularly effective when it came to finishing an opponent. Let Terry sting a rival with one of his savage blows and he soon knocked him out.

Eddie Mack, matchmaker of the Argonne Club who saw McGovern in a number of his important bouts, always contended that "Terrible Terry" was the greatest finisher in the history of the game.

As McGovern knocked over one rival after another, there was a demand that he be matched to battle Dixon. The bout was finally arranged for New York and the date set as January 9, 1900.

Dixon's speed and skill did not avail him a great deal against McGovern. "Terrible Terry" set a terrific pace and wore Dixon down by his fierce body punches. McGovern won in eight rounds and was proclaimed featherweight champion of the world.

Jack Conway will have another article on oldtime fistic heroes in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

FAST FIELD IN 50-MILE RACE

In the 50-mile motor paced race at Revere tomorrow night, George Chapman will ride against Letourneur, Georgetti, Frankie Keenan, Revere idol; Franz Duelberg and Charlie Jaeger.

The field is one of the best that could be gotten together, and even the record for the distance may fall.

Harris Horder, who is picked to succeed Freddy Spencer as sprint champion; Charley Ritter, former amateur titlist, and Ferigo Matteini will race three one-mile heats in a special sprint match.

A strong list of preliminary races for both amateurs and pros will complete the card.

Revere to Play Hyde Park Tonight

Fighting hard for a place at the top of the Hub Twi League race, the Revere team will be in an important clash against Hyde Park at Paul Revere Park, this evening.

In other games tonight, St. Augustine will try to get back in the win column at Columbus Park.

Notes of the Sandlots

The Somerville Cubs will offer some high class entertainment for Roxbury fans at the Shirley Street Grounds tonight when they clash with the William J. Mahoney outfit.

The Cubs, although one of the best semi-pro nines in the East, will find plenty of opposition in the Mahoneys. The latter team has such stars as Joe Shea and "Boots" Connelly of Boston College; Andy Daley, former all-scholastic shortstop, and Andy Moore, of the Roslindale Twi team, in their lineup.

Senator Joseph Mulhern will throw out the first ball in the Cubs-Mahoney contest.

Portland will make the dying grasp at the last straw out on the Dorchester Town Field tonight when they clash with the Dorchester Twilight Leaguers. If Portland loses this p. m., they won't even have the well-known mathematical chance of getting into the play-offs. So they don't intend to lose.

But Portland will be facing a revitalized Dorchester team that is now the bugaboo of the circuit. Dorchester dropped three games at the start of the second half but suddenly flared up and won five straight, conquering Roslindale in their last start and jumping close to the league-leaders, Malden.

Bill Cassissta will be on the hill for Chick Davies' club, while Raymond "Bobby" Coombs is due to start for the Dorchester Twi. Normie Sims chucked a four-hit game against Roslindale, and Coombs hopes to keep pace with his young staff mate tonight.

Patsy Donovan of Orleans in the Cape League has added Lehman, formerly of Lynn, to his roster. He's putting on steam for the final stages of the Cape League race.

Wareham, too, is trying to strengthen its lineup for the last lap and has secured Corella, who was also with Lynn and is one of the fastest infielders around.

Cleveland scouts were spying on the Cape Cod League the other day and tried very earnestly to get George Colbert to sign a contract. But George won't. He's got another year and a big future ahead at Boston College. Colbert has proven the best catcher in the Cranberry Circuit this season. He's hitting hard and playing a smart all-round game.

Hub Fans Root Hard for Bob Quinn

By BILL CONNELL

Boston's Red Sox are back at Fenway Park for a long stay. Down in the cellar, they have little prospect of climbing far this year. But though the Red Hose have not a powerful ball club, they still have someone to cheer about in the person of their boss, President Bob Quinn.

[illegible] the other day three of the [illegible] of Hub baseball bugs were fanning at the back of the grandstand. The trend of their remarks was summed up by one who said:

Bill Connell

"There is one man I'd like to see get some good breaks, Bob Quinn of the Red Sox. Never a kick, always on the job and doing his best for the club. He's a great scout."

And those words undoubtedly reflect the sentiment of every Greater Boston baseball enthusiast.

In 1923 Bob Quinn resigned as business manager of the St. Louis Browns to act as president of the Red Sox. He came to a team which was down, in spirit as well as in the league standing.

Bob Quinn Wins Back Hub Fans

Boston's baseball stars of a few years previous, Babe Ruth and others had been sold. The club had lost not only prestige as a team but the affection and good will of the fans.

Bob Quinn took hold and in a short time won back old Red Sox rooters who had vowed they were [illegible] as supporters of the club. [illegible] dealings and obvious [illegible] on the job despite all hardships won him the support of thousands of baseball followers.

Through the years since then Bob Quinn never has lost his hold on the Boston fans. Though he has not as yet had the thrill of watching his club battle near the top he has not had a word of criticism to offer about his managers or players.

Quinn is one of the few club presidents who allow their managers to run the team. He will not stand for any interference and [illegible] back up the manager.

The Red Sox head is known as one of the [illegible] of all baseball. Without as much money [illegible] as many of the owners he has succeeded in purchasing many players and getting quite a bit of good material out of the lot.

It Took Mack a Long Time to Produce Winner

The Red Sox have been trying out and discarding many ball players during recent years. Connie Mack, who has built a great ball club at Philadelphia, had to do the same thing and in the same number of years as Quinn has been with the Sox Mack probably had not made as much progress as the astute leader of the Hose.

Today, and every day while the Sox are home, Bob Quinn will be up at the field each afternoon that business permits.

He'll be noting each little bit of ability shown by a new man or one of the veterans. And Boston fans will be cheering for him and hoping, too, that he gets a break for these next few weeks of August and all the future.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

The back swing with the irons—as with woods too, incidentally—should be so made that it leaves your wrists firmly in position at the top but not tight and rigid. Too much tightness here throws your body out of balance and causes you immediately to begin hitting with the body instead of with the club, as you should. This is because the wrists are "frozen," meaning that the small muscles which otherwise would "work" the club are virtually paralyzed and out of commission for any functioning in the swing. Thus when the club "takes up" your wrists at the top wrist-breaking having been avoided in the back [illegible] come into position easily, naturally and smoothly. Then your club will automatically recoil for you.

TRYING TO SALVAGE THE GOOD SHIP 'QUINCY'

Larry Cook Mike Lubarskie

LARY COOK and Mike Lubarskie, who are members of the Quincy Twilight League team which is in the cellar of the circuit and with little hope of getting out. But these boys, and the rest of the team from the City of Presidents, keep on plugging. They hope to spoil the chances of some of their more capable opponents and thus get a lot of fun out of the race.

QUINCY STILL IN TWI FIGHT

Although tightly sealed in the cellar of the Greater Boston Twilight League the Quincy entry refuses to give up playing hard fighting baseball. It hasn't a chance of advancement, according to the records and the ability of the team but it is still a competitor.

Quincy lost eight straight games in a row in this half and has been tossed around by large scores by the more capable outfits. But Quincy is still keeping up its hopes to make life miserable for some of the higher-up clubs by ruining their chances as the race continues to the second half flag.

Chapman has been doing [illegible] catching for the [illegible] City of Presidents and hitting the ball hard. Larry Cook makes a great target for the infield at first base and also hits well. Lubarskie has pitched good ball but doesn't get too much support at bat or in the field, and consequently hasn't an impressive list of victories.

Winthrop Legion to Hold Benefit Show

The Winthrop Legion will hold a benefit boxing show tomorrow night at Fort Banks, Winthrop. Fighters from the Army, Navy, Marines and Coast Guard will [illegible]. There will be 42 rounds of boxing.

Sergeant Dan Lucas of Fort McKinley will meet [illegible] of the U. S. S. Southery in the main 10-rounder. Irish Paddy Mullens of the U. S. S. Southery faces Joe Bailer of the Coast Guard in an eight-round semifinal.

Four rounders bring together John Pholsmeyer, U. S. S. Southery, and Duke Dudman, U. S. S. Trenton; Corp. Staskie, Marines and Eddie Collins, Fort Banks; Sailor Greene, U. S. S. Southerly and Eddie Sullivan, U. S. S. Trenton and Bill Hughes, U. S. S. Trenton, and Ambrosia DeBoda, Coast Guard.

Lucy Recs to Play in Benefit Game

The Lusitania Recreation soccer eleven, champions of the State, will play the Santo Christo eleven of New Bedford at the Lusitania Stadium, Cambridge, Sunday afternoon, in a benefit game.

The proceeds will be turned over to Harry Raposa, captain of the Cambridge eleven who was injured three months ago in a game against Fall River.

Raposa has not recovered from the injury yet, but he is able to get around. The New Bedford eleven is a fast aggregation and the game should be a genuine attraction.

De Mar-Henigan Favorites in Race

Clarence De Mar, king of Marathoners and Jimmy Henigan, veteran plodder from Medford, are the favorites to lead the pack tomorrow afternoon in the big 10-mile race at Winthrop, which is being conducted as part of the tercentenary celebration.

This race is the feature event of a big sports program which will be held throughout the day.

AROUND THE CIRCUIT

By BILL CONNELL

While the Athletics are rolling along nicely in the American League lead, the Giants and Robins have just started road trips which may decide the National League race.

John McGraw's men have all the best of it on the tour West. They are scheduled to play 15 games on the tour and as they rested yesterday they are fit for the test.

The Brooklyn club on the other hand plays 20 games on the trail and there are no off days during that time. The Robins meet the Pirates, Cards, Cubs and also the Pirates in succession.

The Giants play the same teams but not over such a long stretch. With a fighting, powerful ball club and a pitching staff that has at last [illegible] to come through for him John McGraw has his chance ahead.

While the Giants and Robins are [illegible] the Cubs will be [illegible] in their [illegible] the Chicago team [illegible] of the circuit while the two New York teams are roaming around the circuit.

Lou Gehrig of the Yanks now has won 13 watches, by hitting home runs in Western cities where such rewards are offered. Lou never wears a vest and so would be in a difficult position but for the fact that the watches all are of the wrist variety.

But even Gehrig's big wrist could not accommodate [illegible] so Lou is waiting for the end of the season [illegible] figures on trading the lot for a large cuckoo clock.

The Boone [illegible] of the Red Sox and more recently [illegible] of the Detroit [illegible] on the bench waiting for another chance. [illegible]

Now it is related that Art Shires, who had figured on grabbing that first base job with the Nationals, took one good look at Kuhel in action and then started digging around back of the bench.

Shires came back sadly, "An outfielder's glove."

2 Special Rifle Matches Carded

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8—The 1930 outdoor program of rifle and pistol matches, sponsored by the National Rifle Association, closed with the exception of two special matches [illegible].

These are the Free Rifle and the [illegible]. Winners of the first [illegible] matches of the [illegible] were announced in June and recently 22 events closed.

These included [illegible] the high power or 30-calibre rifle, the small bore rifle and the pistol.

[illegible] matches are fired on the home ranges of competitors in the presence of witnesses under the rules of the NRA.

[illegible] are then mailed to Headquarters of the Association in this city and are carefully checked before the announcement of the long list of medal-winners.

Baseball Finals for Boys at Fenway

The finals of the Boston Playground baseball events will be staged at Fenway Park today, previous to the game between the Red Sox and Detroit Tigers.

Three thousand playground youngsters from different sections of the city will be guests to witness four events.

Long distance throwing, throwing for accuracy from the plate to second base, throwing for accuracy from the outfield to the plate and circling the bases will be included among the events.

Look for the Banner on the pump

What motorists tell US about the New Socony—
BANNER GASOLINE

Quick starting. "I've tried other popular-priced gasolines, but none respond so quickly to the starter as your new Banner."

Instant pick-up. "You claim that Banner gives instant pick-up. I'll say you're right. No other gasoline in its price class that I've tried can touch it."

More power. "You feel the extra power in Banner at once. There's an enormous power difference in favor of Banner over other popular-priced gasolines."

More miles per gallon. "I'm going to get the most for my money out of the gallons I buy, and I'm getting that with Banner. It's got every other gasoline in its price class beat on mileage."

No knocking. "My car knocked on non-premium gasolines until I tried Banner."

No sticky valves. If there had been, we certainly should have heard about it—and there's not a single letter. Not surprising since we know Banner is completely gum-free.

We know that all these things that people tell us are facts, for we have proved them by actual road tests made in Cambridge, Lynn, Somerville, Brockton and Quincy July 21st and 22d.

Now

IT wasn't enough for the Standard Oil Company of New York to offer motorists the best premium gasoline—Socony Special plus Ethyl.

Motorists wanted the best popular-price gasoline, too—and now they have it—in the New Socony—Banner Gasoline.

On sale only three weeks. Already motorists are telling US of its quicker starting and pick-up, extra power, greater mileage, absence of knocking and entire freedom from gum.

We didn't ask people to believe these things on our say-so, but to try out the gasoline for themselves. They have—thousands of them—and they are keeping on using it. Every single day more motorists drive up to the Banner pumps—the busiest pumps in town.

OVERDOSE OF BROMIDE KILLS PRISONER

Medford Family Driven Out by Fire

Judy Involved in Halifax Mystery

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Judith Archer is a country school teacher 22, and good looking. She wants to be a college professor, while her mother would like her to go in the movies. But Judy lived a double life. She becomes interested in the story of a jewel robbery in London. She goes to New York and calls on Capt. Charley Marceau. He suggests Judy and her mother take a trip with him. She takes passage on Capt. Charley's ship for her mother and herself and draws all her money from the bank. Judy finds herself looking for the radio operator with the sea-green eyes—but he does not remember her at first. Then they spend hours together. Judy stumbles on a mystery at Halifax.

CHAPTER 15

Judy never had screamed in all her life, never had hysteria, never fainted.

The other Judy might have done these things: the other Judy might have put out her foot and tripped the fugitive and held him for the police and the fabulous reward—for, of course, there'd have been a reward for the other Judy.

But the dependable Judy, the girl with no nonsense about her, saw the man with the bloody face dashing straight at her—and scurried around the fountain, jumped a flower bed, scrambled through a hedge and into the street.

She waited for her heart to quiet, catching rasping little breaths, straining her ears. From far away on the harbor came a deep note; it reminded her that the Mohawk would sail at 4.

Meant to Call
But Lips Were Numb

She glanced at her wrist watch—raised her eyes to look squarely into the dark, half-laughing gaze of the man who had disappeared around the shrubbery—the man who moved without sound. Surely his springy step had taken him to the very spot of the quarrel?

Surely everything happened almost at the second of his slipping between the leafy walls of the lane? He must have seen, he must have been right there!

Judy took a headlong step; she meant to call him back, ask what had happened. But her lips were numb; she opened her mouth, watched him move along jauntily with no look of haste. Before he crossed the street he turned and sent her a half nod, raising his hat. Then he disappeared through the doors of the big hotel which is near the Public Gardens.

Must Find Out
So She Started Back

Now she felt she must find out what had happened. Supposing the man who ran away had shot a visitor coming here like herself? Supposing someone lay there under the shrubbery wounded and suffering? Supposing—well, supposing anything. She never had shirked a duty—never been frightened because a thing looked disagreeable.

She was still shaking a little but her chin was out as she started back, not as she had come but along the street. She had gone only a little way when she found another entrance, one which opened upon the path between the thick walls of shrubs. Through this lane and this gate the dark-eyed youth strolled so blithely, since there was no other way he could have got to the street.

He must have heard the shots then; he must have seen whatever happened. It was possible—why, it was possible he had taken part in it! That he had fired the shots himself!

Judy hurried through the lane. She peered and pried, thrusting branches aside, going carefully over the ground. She heard nothing, saw nothing—no mark, no trampled grass, no broken boughs.

Toward the end of the lane where it turned sharply just before reaching the fountain was a bench and a man lounged there. He was slumped over with his head against the iron at the back of the bench, his face very red in sleep.

Judy stopped and regarded him, puzzled over some incongruity in his appearance. His clothes were shabby and soiled—machine oil would have made those stains—and a little knitted cap such as workmen

SUSPICIOUS BLAZE TO BE PROBED

Flames Start in the Owner's Apartment After Family Leaves for Vacation

A family was driven to the street in nightclothing when fire of suspicious origin broke out in an apartment whose occupants were away, at 91 Park st., Medford, early today.

The house is a three-family, duplex structure, numbered 91-93 Park st., with the owner, Vincenzo Rindone and his family occupying the premises at 91.

Yesterday the family left on a vacation, and at 2 30 this morning fire broke out near the stairway between the second and third floors.

The family of Herman Fuller, occupying the lower apartment at 93 Park st., were driven out. The upper apartment on that side is vacant.

The state police were called in to aid in the investigation of the fire started by the local authorities.

HEALEY SAYS NOT GUILTY IN KILLING

Held in Brookline Slaying After Telling of Seeing Officer Shot Dead

After signing a confession to his part in the slaying of Patrolman Joseph P. O'Brien of Brookline, according to police, Thomas Healey, 19, of Pittsburgh, formally pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder today in Brookline district court.

Smiling faintly, but pale and haggard from lack of sleep, his hair uncombed, and without a necktie, the boy entered the courtroom in company of a court officer to find a roomful of spectators waiting to see him.

He made his plea of not guilty in a low voice, which the spectators could not hear. Judge Philip S. Parker held him without bail for the grand jury and authorized his removal to Dedham jail.

BROUGHT FROM NEW YORK.

Brought from New York Healey was questioned until 1 a. m. at Brookline police headquarters, his answers being taken down by Miss Kathleen Bassett, court stenographer.

At that hour Miss Bassett began transcribing her notes, finishing at 10 30.

Police say Healey read over the 35 typewritted pages and affixed his signature to the story in which he accuses his companion, Paul Hurley, 20, who has not yet been arrested, of shooting the policeman at Ivy and Carleton sts., Brookline, last Sunday night.

The "confession" was not presented to Judge Parker, but Asst. Dist.-Atty. Dewing outlined the case briefly, saying:

"These fellows went out with the intention of stealing an automobile and holding up a drug store. One of the two, Hurley or Healey, fired the fatal bullet."

"The government has no evidence to charge my client with murder," said William G. Todd of 40 Court st., who was engaged as attorney for the boy, he said, by a Pittsburgh relative and Healey's parish priest.

HUNT FOR HURLEY

Meanwhile, police followed several new clues in the search for Hurley.

A thorough search of New York has convinced police that Hurley never reached there as planned. Today they were confining their search to points between Boston and New York and points in Maine, the latter on the theory that he doubled back in his flight.

Gordon Wilson, another friend of Healey and Hurley, was still held in Dedham jail as a material witness.

Plans for many benefits for the dead officer's wife and three-year-old son were announced today, including a baseball game between the Brighton police and a team of all stars. No date was announced.

The Brookline Social Club will hold a benefit at the Town Hall September 3, and the Brookline Lodge of Elks will present a play in the high school auditorium, September 17.

Committees announced that the fund so far has reached the $1800 mark.

Pal of Slayer Tells Story

ASST. DIST. ATTY. EDMUND DEWING. THOMAS HEALEY. SERGT. ALLEN WILSON.

THOMAS HEALEY, ARRESTED IN New York for complicity in the murder of Patrolman Joseph P. O'Brien, in Brookline, early Monday, made a complete confession to his part in the crime, at Brookline police station, where he is being held. Meanwhile, Brookline and Boston police have extended search for Healey's pal, Paul Hurley, named by Healey as the killer.

LAWSON, DALY WAR OVER DOG

The neighborhood row which has been going on for some years between Arnold Lawson, son of the late financier, Thomas W. Lawson, and Frank Daly, proprietor of Dreamwold Inn, has flared up again.

Lawson, who has made numerous attempts to close up the inn, located on what was once a part of the vast estate of his father at Egypt, has clashed with Daly again, this time over dogs.

While stories of the two differ, the facts seem to be that several of the numerous Lawson dogs gathered on the Inn lawn and engaged in a battle.

One of the dogs was severely bitten and Daly said he took it into the inn, treated its wounds and then telephoned to Lawson to take it home. Lawson says Daly's dog inflicted the injuries on his animal and instead of going after the wounded dog he asked the police to do it.

When they refused he attempted to obtain a warrant to search the inn and that being unsuccessful appealed to the selectmen. When they likewise declined, Lawson went home and Daly ended the matter by taking the dog to its owner's house.

He was a seaman on the Kingfisher when he was seized by the Confederate pirate cruiser, Alabama, and he was held in irons for 20 days and a prisoner for many months.

He is survived by his widow, a daughter, three grandchildren and [illegible] great grandchildren.

Plunge Is Fatal

MISS SUSIE McLEOD, OF Falmouth st., Back Bay, met death when she backed her automobile into an elevator shaft on the fourth floor of a garage.

FALLS TO DEATH IN AUTO

Falling 60 feet through the elevator shaft of a Back Bay garage, a small coupe carried Miss Susie McLeod, 45, of Falmouth st., to her death when it crashed on the elevator at the ground floor. She died at Boston City Hospital early today.

The woman was [illegible] her small coupe on the fourth floor of the garage when it [illegible] backed into the gate, turned upside down and plunged to the top of the elevator at the ground floor.

Edward Cumming, operator of the elevator, called help from Engine 33 and Ladder 15 of the fire department.

Suffering from a compound fracture of the [illegible] and internal injuries, she was rushed to City Hospital but died at 12.25 a. m.

HOSTS OF LABOR SEEK AID FOR UNEMPLOYED

Federation Calls on Allen to Have a Study Made of Situation in State

Delegates to the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor convention, now in session at the Elks Hotel, today began electing officers for 1931 as the annual convention was drawing to a close. All of the present officers are seeking re-election and there are several hot contests for some of the important posts in the union.

The election began immediately after the officers' reports for the past year had been submitted to Sec. Martin F. Joyce and had been checked.

The greater part of today's session was devoted to the many resolutions reported by the resolutions committee.

Among the important resolutions passed was one requesting Governor Allen to name employment boards in various cities and towns, to make a study of ways and means to relieve the present unemployment situation.

Another resolution demanding that all school books and other printed matter bear the union label.

The convention also endorsed the proposed legislation which would raise the compulsory school age in Massachusetts to 16 years old.

YOUNG PRODIGY HAS EQUALS

Child prodigies of the past are recalled by the announcement that 14-year-old Albert Seeler of Derry, N. H., will enter Harvard this fall.

The best known of these precocious children in recent years were William James Sidis, formerly of Brookline, and Winifred Sackville Stoner, Jr.

At the age of 11 Sidis lectured to Harvard professors on the fourth dimension and the same year he entered Harvard as a regular student, graduating in 1913 at 15.

After his graduation he taught in the West and in 1919 was arrested in Roxbury in a May Day radical demonstration, afterwards dropping from public view.

Winifred Sackville Stoner, Jr., was able to read at the age of 16 months. She began keeping a diary at two, was invulnerable in spelling tests at three, and learned the Latin declensions as singing exercises at four.

After that she translated Mother Goose into Esperanto and added other spectacular achievements to her record. Her mother, who supervised her education at every step, did not neglect her physically, and the girl grew into a healthy, normal woman.

Her experience with marriage was not so successful for she had two husbands, divorcing one and at last reports being involved in a suit against the other for annulment of her marriage.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

ARREST INDIAN MYSTIC ON A DRUG CHARGE

Prince Singh's Powers Fail Him When a Girl Decoy Uses Marked Money

Prince Singh, 31, hailed in theatrical advertising as a Hindu prophet and seer with psychic power enabling him to read the minds of others, was arrested today for the sale of eight hypodermic needles and a syringe.

Characterized by his press agent as a man who "sees all, knows all and tells all," and pronounced by the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle as "the marvel of the age," he was taken through the use of a girl decoy.

His psychic power, which during a recent appearance in a local theater was described as "awe-inspiring," apparently deserted the Prince completely.

According to the police, it failed to warn him that the attractive young woman who sought hypodermic needles was in the pay of the law.

Sergt. Robert Caverly with Special Officers Thomas Keating and John Petetti, of the Narcotic squad, said they stepped in when the sale was made and found in Prince Singh's possession marked money they had given the decoy.

This occurred, according to the police, at a hotel in Tremont st., where the Prince has been a guest for some time.

The arrest followed an investigation resulting from complaints received by the narcotic squad.

Prince Singh was brought to headquarters where, after being finger printed and photographed, he was talked to by Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman in connection with the survey of the drug traffic he is making.

MOTHER WIRES FOR HER BABY

In the message which was sent from Waterville, Me., she gave no reason for her sudden departure from the hospital.

Police had been searching for Mrs. Starbuck on request of the hospital authorities and had discovered that last night she bought a ticket at Salem for Oakland, Me., where her parents have a camp. Oakland is near Waterville.

ROW IN CAPITOL LEADS TO JAIL

[illegible] Krueger, 35, [illegible] employed by the State [illegible] today was found guilty of [illegible] in the State [illegible] and sentenced to seven days in the House of Correction.

[illegible] who lives in Roxbury, [illegible] employed on Commonwealth [illegible] appealed and was released on [illegible] personal recognizance.

According to State Officers [illegible] and Joseph Cinavan, who prosecuted the case, Krueger appeared at the office of the State [illegible] and applied for [illegible] of $700.

He became involved in an argument with a girl clerk. The clerk reported the matter, and Krueger, police say, then became involved in an argument with an employe of the auditor's office. State House Guards James H. Southworth and Herbert J. Dolan ejected Krueger and ordered him from the grounds.

Krueger is said to have [illegible] himself in an automobile parked in the State House enclosure and refused to leave. He was taken to the office of Capt. Thomas E. [illegible]gh and a warrant was taken out.

STATE WILL AID BIG PARADE

Assurance was given by Governor Allen at the State House today to Mayor James M. Curley and General [illegible], chief marshal of the [illegible] Day Parade, that he and the National Guard would take active part in the parade on Sept. 17.

Mayor Curley later announced that he had received acceptances of invitations to attend the Boston Day Ceremonies at Boston Garden on Sept. 16 from Governor Allen, Governor John E. Weeks of Vermont and Governor Louis L. Emmerson of Illinois.

Mayor Louis A. Gastonguay of Halifax, N. S., and Mayor James McConnell of Sydney, N. S., also sent their acceptances of Mayor Curley's invitation to come to Boston for the ceremonies.

BOSTON GIRL TO ENTER CONVENT

More than 150 relatives, friends and classmates at St. Margaret's [illegible], Dorchester, will be present tonight at a farewell party to be given for Catherine T. Garrity, 17, of 16 Thornley st., who leaves Tuesday to enter the Convent of the Sisters of Charity at Halifax. Miss Garrity, one of the popular younger girls in Dorchester, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Garrity. Miss Garrity is a graduate of Edward Everett school and St. Margaret's class of 1930.

90 Hours Extra Duty for Lone Cigarette

Patrolman Joseph Daukshta of the Dudley st. station was given 90 hours' punishment duty by Police Commissioner Hultman last night as a reminder that smoking cigarettes and reading newspapers in doorways is not proper for a policeman on duty.

Daukshta, formerly attached to the Hanover st. station, [illegible] to have taken a few minutes off from duty during the evening to sit in the doorway on Commercial st. and read the news while puffing a cigarette.

HAVE OPTION IN CASE OF ALLOWANCE

Payment Will Not Bar Them From Making a Demand for Compensation

Congressman John W. McCormack of Boston today received an important ruling from the U. S. Veterans' Bureau that the filing of pension claims by World War veterans will not operate against them if they later decide to file claim for compensation for disabilities.

Under date of August 1 the congressman wired the director of the veterans' bureau at Washington to determine the future policy of the bureau in this respect.

He received the following letter from Col. George E. Ijams, acting director:

"The filing of a disability allowance claim will in no way operate against a claim for disability compensation; neither will the filing of a disability allowance claim be considered as an admission on the part of a veteran that he has no service connected disability. Each claim, whether it be for a disability allowance of disability compensation, will be adjudicated upon its own merits.

"In the event a claim for disability allowance is awarded, the veteran has the right to submit evidence for the purpose of showing that the disability for which he is receiving disability allowance is service connected. If it is shown that the disability is service connected, the payment of disability allowance will not preclude the payment of disability compensation. However, you are aware, the amendatory legislation of July 3, 1930, does not allow the payment to any person of both disability allowance and compensation during the same period."

MUCH ACTIVITY AT AIRPORT

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

While Boston Municipal Airport does not hold an A 1 A rating, there is sufficient aerial activity in the transport line to assure it of a place in the roll of honor of the country's airports, Acting Airport Superintendent Daniel Eldridge stated today.

Twenty regularly scheduled air liners take off or land at the airport four days a week, and on the last two days, the number jumps to 23 planes.

The airport total was raised [illegible] with the start of the [illegible] Augusta line yesterday. While the complete number won't reach the hoped for total of [illegible] for the summer, the increase is so great over last year that the field has taken on an air of importance seldom seen on an airport of [illegible].

Eldridge, who ordinarily is airport patrolman and official greeter, is kept busy on the field preparing the way for the air liners as they leave or arrive. He also manages to sandwich in the welcoming of visiting planes.

LONG CAREER IN THEATER

Film Who's Who

Accident made a motion picture [illegible] of Gwen Lee, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Wampas Baby star of 1928, who appears as a mannequin in Joan Crawford's newest talking picture, "Our Blushing Brides," on the screen at Loew's Orpheum next week. It was during a trip across the continent with her family that a chance meeting with Monta Bell, the noted director, brought about her entrance into the films. Bell, attracted by Gwen's blonde beauty and large, expressive eyes, [illegible] test. [illegible] Lady of the Night, one of Norma Shearer's [illegible] features. Miss Lee subsequently appeared in numerous productions and is a graduate of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's stock school for young players.

Gwen Lee

FAVORITES IN B. F. KEITH FILM

There are two lassies in "Little Accident," now at the New B. F. Keith's and beginning its second week [illegible], who have notable folk in the movies. For one there is Joan Marsh. She hails Mary Pickford as "Auntie." Not that Miss Pickford is a real blood relation, but Joan is so close to her that Joan uses the Auntie as a term of endearment. For it was Miss Pickford, so Hollywood says, that discovered her. The Nation's Sweetheart selected Joan when the latter was but a tiny child, to support her in various films. She thus became a sort of next to mother to Joan, who is only 16 now. Miss Pickford continues her interest in her young protegee, and with advice has aided her in her career.

Sally Blane

Another in "Little Accident" with kin known to fame is Sally Blane. For her sisters are Loretta Young and Polly Ann Young, famous names. Sally and Loretta were elected Wampas Baby Stars together in 1929.

The family went in for films at an early age. Sally, Loretta and their brother Jackie appeared in a number of pictures when they were still children. Then Sally abandoned her screen career to go on with her education, returning to pictures when she was sixteen years of age.

Sally's return to the screen was a matter of accident. She was at luncheon with Joan Crawford when her beauty attracted the attention of Wesley Ruggles, the director. Through his interest she obtained the second lead in Universal's [illegible]

CYRIL MAUDE IN TRIUMPH AT MET

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

GRUMPY, FILM FEATURE at the Metropolitan, is almost entirely Cyril Maude. Which is saying a great deal indeed. For Cyril Maude is a splendid actor. On stage he made "Grumpy" famous and lucrative, and as a sort of return favor, the play added tremendously to his own fame, and incidentally brought home the bacon in cash. Now that photographing stage matter has been run in almost all the studios it was but fitting they should think of Mr. Maude's long popular vehicle. "Grumpy" was trotted out from the script shelves. Mr. Maude was lured into talkiedom and the result is a fast moving photoplay that is filled, thanks to the fine actor, with laughs.

The audience in the midst of which we sat yesterday enjoyed the production immensely. There was that rather rare proof, applause, and a good deal of it. There were also the frequent sounds of mirth, often vociferous. For Mr. Maude is just that kind of an actor, he gets every thing there is out of his role.

The comedy is old, and its story need not be rehearsed. But it is like old wine when the creator of its big part is on hand—always delectable. His is a well nigh perfect characterization, and he makes the movie worth seeing and hearing.

FOR FOOTLIGHT FARE the Metropolitan has a corking good revue, "Garden of Girls." This is a Boris Petroff offering, which means excellence. Billy Glason, former Bostonian, is the star and a bright one he is. Others featured are Gertrude Fisher, the Fred Evans girls, and "Bob, Bob and Bobby."

THE SHOW, A GOOD ONE, marks the first bill under the entire management of the theater's new manager, Henry Taylor. Mr. Taylor succeeds [illegible] I. Bearg, one of the [illegible] of the Publix executives who established himself as of first rank by his success at the Scollay which preluded his promotion to the Metropolitan. Publix is now lifting him still higher, he steps up a number of niches to become a district manager out of the Home Office of Publix in New York city.

Mr. Taylor is one of the best showmen in Boston. He has had long experience in the business, and "knows theater" from A to Z, and then backwards.

MANY BOSTONIANS WON FAME IN VAUDEVILLE

By FRANK CAVERLY

Proud am I of what Boston has done for the stage and variety. For I am a Bostonian myself, and being practically born in show business, I appreciate all that our city has done for the profession. I was born in the old North End, which gave many footlight figures to the world. Among the Bostonians who got their start in the early days may be mentioned the great Daly family, Tom, Pete, Dan, Bob and Lizzie. In the nineties they were starring in "Vacation." After separating Dan starred alone in his own play, "Upside Down." Dan Daly was for years a Broadway star, he was an eccentric comedian with a sepulchre voice and his aping of an English lord was a classic.

Jim Thornton, also from the North End, was and still is the greatest monologist in the varieties. Jim wrote and sang his own songs, among them being "When You Were Sweet Sixteen," "My Sweetheart's the Man in the Moon," "Across the Bridge of Sighs," "The Irish Jubilee," "Mr. Christofo Colombo," "On the Benches in the Park," "She May Have Seen Better Days" and many others. Jim is now with Hammerstein's "Sweet Adeline" show. Andrew Mack, or McAloon, was another North Ender who became famous on two continents. In Australia he starred for years in Irish plays. George Lythgoe, another North Ender, went into opera and became famous. Charles Mackie and Ben Walker, a couple from the old North End corners, were a pair of eccentric comedians and singers.

Andrew Mack

BILL DALY, of the team of Brennan and Daly, also North Enders, eccentric comedians and parody singers, were a big hit. Their imitations of the Rev. Dr. Parkhurst and Captain of Police Chaplain was the talk of New York City in the nineties. Whitney and Learned were an Irish team of comedians who came from the West End. Their song sensation was "Won't You Step Up to the Bar, Me Boys."

Schoolcraft and Coes, blackface team, were from the South End, as were also Andy Leavitt, the old Negro delineator with his banjo; Billy McDermott, tramp comedian and parody singer. He was with Peck's Bad Boy as a starter in the nineties. From the West End came Eddie and George Leslie, eccentric comedians. After the split of partnership both took on different partners.

Street Fair Success at Plymouth

THERE ISN'T ANY doubt but that Plymouth means to keep the patriotic fires burning around her historic old rock and the annual street fair held yesterday for the Plymouth Antiquarian Society spread a warm glow of pride over her townspeople and visitors. North st., that beautiful old thoroughfare lined with lindens brought from England hundreds of years ago, was in holiday dress, with booths and bunting, costumes and characters.

IT WAS LIKE A PICTURE on an old music box suddenly come to life. Houses and gardens opened their doors and gates to a reverend public who shared in the glory that was Plymouth's. Street singers and fiddlers made merry and there was dancing on the green. The town crier kept all informed that things were happening here, there and everywhere, and clever little vendors gathered in the pennies to swell the coffers of the society.

IF AN OLD SAILING VESSEL had sailed up the harbor and disembarked her passengers in 1630 they must have looked very much as did the charming women who donned costumes taken from old trunks and attics for this occasion. Mme Sans Gene was there, in the person of Mrs Clarence V. Burtage, looking very much a lady from old France in empire gown and befeathered chapeau; her daughter, Alice, a bud of 1930-31 was attractive in flowered silk with amusing hat like an inverted pie plate; vivacious Mrs Russell T. Fyve and her five little daughters were dressed as Puritans, Mrs Fyve a sort of holiday Puritan in pink tulle and lace poke.

MRS. J. ARCHIE O'REILLY of St. Louis, a [illegible] by birth, seemed to greatly enjoy her homecoming to native haunts, and Miss Eleanor Strickland was even more attractive in Colonial than in her debutante gown of last season. [illegible] Mrs Arthur Cabot of Milton and Mrs George [illegible] of New York, also Mrs Ralph Hornblower and Mr Frank Holmes very much interested in the pageantry of by-gone days. The Paul Revere Potters were there displaying their wares to an admiring throng. [illegible] Walter Bowden, chairman and Mrs George Mabbitt are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts to make this day a memorable one in the memories of Plymouth.

Dudley A. Cooley To Wed Miss Jane Munroe Breeding

ENGAGEMENT OF [illegible] Ames Cooley, son of Mr and Mrs [illegible] Cooley of Boston and [illegible] Sunapee, N. H., to Miss Jane Munroe Breeding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Penn Breeding of Seven Oaks Park, Orange, N. J. No date has been set for the wedding.

SAILING ON THE MAJESTIC today are Mr. Robert A. Boston; also Mr and Mrs William Shaw and Miss Miriam Shaw of [illegible] Endicott of Danvers, bound for Southampton and Cherbourg.

SUNDAY MORNING AT TEN is the much-looked forward to swimming meet at the Scituate Yacht Club between Plymouth and Scituate. Boland Burbank, from Honolulu, a skillful entrant, will take part and Miss Eleanor Strickland will enter the diving contest to uphold the side of Plymouth against Scituate.

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK L. AMES JR., have bought the top floor of the new co-operative apartment house on Arlington st., known as the Junior League building, where the league will make its headquarters this September. Mr. and Mrs. Ames, who were married so romantically in Mexico last year and planed back to Boston, enjoy both their yacht and airplane during the hot weather. Mr. Ames' mother, Mrs. Lothrop Ames, is at Newport for the season.

Social Favorites Are Mannequins at Bar Harbor Benefit

ONE OF THE LEADING SOCIAL events of the Bar Harbor season occurred at the Bar Harbor Club Tuesday evening when a fancy dress ball was co-ordinated with a fashion show by Bonwit-Teller for the benefit of the Bar Harbor Hospital. The benefit was one of the major events of the tennis week activities with the most beautiful and popular girls of the summer colony acting as mannequins in the fashion pageant. Miss Bertha Palmer, daughter of Mr and Mrs Potter Palmer of Chicago, wore a white evening gown on Grecian lines, and Miss Winifred Thorndike alternated with a dark velvet street dress with ermine scarf and a blue taffeta evening gown with silver embroidery.

MISS ELEANOR McCORMICK, daughter of Mrs Robert Hall McCormick of Chicago, [illegible] appeared in an orange and yellow beach pajama suit with short [illegible] and after in a [illegible] gown. Miss Cordelia [illegible] daughter of Mr and Mrs W. S. THESE RESIDENCES in Pemberton sq. have long since gone to make room for the Suffolk County court house. The buildings 17 and 18 were almost at the corner, where Pemberton sq. winds upward to Somerset st. After the buildings in the square were given up as residences, the lawyers came in and so it was very easy to make the neighborhood a "legal" one as it now is.

Legislative Program Is Planned

Clubwomen to Open Season's Activities at Billerica Conference in October

By NANCY BREWSTER

The legislative program of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs officially starts October [illegible] when Mrs Fred L. P[illegible] of East Boston, State legislative chairman, takes speakers and pending bills to Billerica, where the 10th district conference is to be held.

The [illegible] Hundred Club, of which Mrs [illegible] of North Billerica is the new president, will act as hostess to the clubwomen of the district. The meeting will be held in the vestry of the Unitarian Church.

[illegible] increased interest of women in [illegible] matters legislative, Mrs P[illegible] far-reaching political [illegible] because of the new influence of [illegible] women on legislation.

WOMEN INTERESTED

[illegible]

More demands for legislative speakers have come to the State legislative chairman than ever before, she said. And throughout the State legislative departments are springing up like mushrooms, so great is the interest of clubwomen in what's happening on Beacon Hill.

Mrs P[illegible] is concerned with training the clubwomen to [illegible] legislators and place their constructive suggestions before them tactfully, diplomatically and honest.

Don't Starve The Teeth

Teeth have to be built out of foods that are rich in phosphorus and calcium. Many children take into adult life teeth that are defective, unfit for the job that nature intended. Shredded Wheat with milk helps develop sound teeth, good muscles and good bones. It is rich in the bone-making salts. The crisp, crunchy shreds make chewing necessary and that develops healthy gums and good digestion.

CHAPTER 62

Alphonse.

Raquel felt that queer shrinking she had come to know lately when the thought of the chalky little Frenchman with the long tapering fingers and the agate eyes pressed in upon her.

"I don't know what's wrong with me, Greta," she confessed, something like fear in her wide black eyes. "It seems incredible, but already Alphonse is as a stranger to me. I have trouble in visualizing him. Except his hands, when they close over something he really wants and cares about. And his eyes, when he narrows them and they glitter."

"You mean you can't see what he looks like, just as if he were here now?"

"That's it. I can't even recall the tone of his voice clearly. And yet I've seen him, listened to him, been with him day in and day out for more than two years. He's done everything for me. Everything. But for him I'd be a grain of dust—on a desert. It's uncanny."

"He has no idea you might become Mrs. Jerry?"

Pins in Balloon
Is Greta's Prophecy

"How could he have? I had no idea of such a thing myself until a few hours ago."

"Umm. Something tells me the old boy is going to stick pins into the nice pink balloon when he hears about it. He's balmy about you, dearie. I could shed a tear or two for him, at that. He's a good egg, even if he has had a few bad spots in his time."

"I don't know quite what to do," Raquel confessed.

"Then don't do anything. Just tune in on the wedding march. Let them dance as likes it. I'll miss you like I would the other half of me, if I was a Siamese twin. But you don't hear me crabbing about it."

"Alphonse might be ugly about it. He can be, you know."

"Then be yourself, Hard-boiled. He'll get over it. They all do. You've always claimed you do these bimbos a good turn when you give them the air. That's what you said about Bertie Adams and Stafford."

Raquel reached her decision. She would not inform Alphonse of her approaching marriage until it had become an established fact. Once she had taken the step, there was nothing Alphonse could do about it. Her future with Jerry would be reasonably secure. A week remained in which to accomplish both security. Alphonse would not be in Paris for another week.

Jerry came in at twilight. Baffled in a ferment of impatience and thwarted hope. The French palms had not turned so easily to the greasing. Certain forms must be followed. They could facilitate the happy event for monsieur up to a certain point. Beyond that, it was "impossible."

"It will mean five days at least, Raquel," he raged, as if five days were five eternities. "Even a week. It's preposterous. I felt like wringing a couple of official necks. Five days! Maybe seven!"

A week. Alphonse might return before she had given herself, definitely, to Jerry. He would. He was lonely, eager to see her, to hear her voice. He had written her as much.

A panic seized her. It shook the slender wires of her already overstrained nerves. Just ahead of her there, round the corner, was a reasonable assurance of happiness. If she could reach that corner, and get around it before the slender, tapering hand thrust out from under the dark cowl could seize her. She was breathless, running. Her pulse a pain of agony in her throat beating. Once when she had striven to reach the Mission of San Jeronimo—

"I have it!" Jerry came to her and lifted her bodily from her chair, allowing her to slip down by tiptoe to the floor. "Will you do it, dear girl? Will you?"

"But you haven't told me what it is you want me to do?" Raquel reminded him.

"Say yes, and I'll tell you. Sight unseen!" he teased.

"Well—then—yes."

"We'll have a ship wedding. I know the skipper of the Marathon. She's an American vessel, you know. The skipper would like nothing better than to tie me up for life. He's often told me so. I've shipped with him a dozen times. And he's stayed with me at my club often when he's in port. We'll let him play sky-pilot for us, Raquel. I knew there must be some way, even if the old mind has gone blotto thinking of you. Raquel, you're mine."

He looked at her as if his eyes could not believe what his heart told him.

"Will you mind, dear girl? The skipper's an ace. And we can have the knot double-tied by a landlubber when we get to New York."

She supposed she ought to show some hesitation—to be coy. To keep him on the qui vive for his answer.

Raquel Consents
To Wedding on Ship

What was the use? She was as anxious as he was to have their union accomplished—to be aboard that ship.

"Very well, Jerry," she said. "It shall be as you wish."

He would not let her go. He held her in the curve of his arm while they surmised and supposed and made great pretense of working out their plans for their going.

And Raquel, her head pressed against his heart, spread the crazy quilt of her youth and her flight from it through strange paths into his arms, before Gerald Parker.

She withheld nothing. Hermosa. The 'dobe shack in Arizona. Pancho, her father; Lucy her mother, Emilio, her brother; Rosita, her sister; and baby Jose. How she had all but sold herself to Bill Johnson, the cattleman. Jack Farrell, the laughing mining engineer, that night on the edge of the desert when she had ridden away out of his life. The black hat with the paradise feathers that had led her to Alphonse. Bertie Adams. Eric Stafford.

He must know the worst of her. The best he already knew. If the worst outbalanced his love for her, then there was time for him to turn back. She had done no evil in the accepted sense of the term. She had been cruel, but not wicked. To the world she must appear an ungrateful child, a daughter bereft of all filial love. Yet she was an ingrate who struggled desperately to climb to some secure height where she might safely make an attempt, however belated, to pull Lucy and Pancho and their brood out of the morass into which they were sinking.

Gerald Parker did not interrupt her recital. The past flowed from her lips like water gushing jerkily but with a force that brooked no barrier from a hot spring hidden within her breast.

When she had finished, Jerry but laid tender lips on her trembling mouth.

"Thank you, dear one," he said, "for the confidences you have given me. We will not mention these things again. They are dead. Except such of them as have to do with the 'dobe house in the desert. But they must wait—until we reach New York."

"I want to see Lucy again—and little Jose." Her eyes were wet.

"You shall see all of them. I know, Raquel, you do not love me. I have known from the first. But I want you on any terms. And if there is a way of awakening love within you, I shall find it."

Rhyming Optimist

—By ALINE MICHAELIS—

In Darkness

Deep-rooted in man's thought
A dread of darkness dwells,
From primal ages brought
Its shade casts sombre spells.

Yet in the end we find
This fear a foolish thing,
For darkness can be kind
Past all imagining.

In darkness music rings
Most magical, most clear;
By night the bird that sings
Charms most the listening ear.

And through the velvet dark
Gardenia and rose
While starry fleets embark
Most potent sweets disclose.

That knows the toil and schemes
That ever fill man's breast
But darkness flowers with dreams
Worth more than all the rest.

What's in Fashion?

Coats Everybody'll Like!

—Directed by AMOS PARRISH—

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Yes, it is warm. But we just can't wait any longer to talk about the new fall coats. The ones you're going to see on every fashionable avenue the minute it gets cool enough.

You're thinking about them. Every fashion-wise woman is. Wondering what they'll be like . . . and if you're going to like 'em.

If we're any judge of good looking, sure-fire winning fashions . . . you are going to like 'em! Better than you've liked any coats for years.

They make you think of dresses. Nice soft lines to them. Interesting seamings, like dresses. Intricate details, too. Skirt fullness like dresses. And good wraparounds that give the dress look.

Luxurious Looking

They're luxurious looking, these new fall coats. Plenty of fur . . . but not too much. Not so much that you see the fur before you see the coat . . . as we have gone in the past.

Want to pick one now? We've picked three already . . . and make no bones about stating that they're three slick fall coats. Just about as slick as any of the thousands you're going to see.

Wide Wrap

One of our choices for a just-about-perfect fall coat is the one with the wide wrap and a belt to hold it closed. A typical Vionnet silhouette. One that's becoming to almost anybody . . . and that's extra warm because of the wide wrap.

Smartest with the convertible shawl collar . . . the one that can be left open or rolled up close to the throat. And this collar in a long-haired fur, fox preferably—cross, blue or dyed brown.

Another first in fashion fall coat . . . one easy to wear and easy to look at . . . is the coat with medium wrap that fastens with one button.

You're going to like this kind of fastening. Leaves your hands free without making you wear a belt . . . if you don't care for belts.

You'll see this coat with the shorter shawl collar and bands of fur cuffs. It will be seamed in an interesting way. And popular in formal broadcloth or suede cloth or the more informal tweed or homespun. It's sketched in tweed at the center.

Crushed Collar

A third winner . . . so we predict . . . will be a coat with a medium wrap, a belt that can be worn or not—just as you please—and a crushed collar of caracul or Persian lamb.

It will be seamed to fit almost like a dress and made of broadcloth or suede-finished fabrics. And one good type of it is sketched at the right.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN THE breasts are not developed, the cause may be in a defective glandular system. If it isn't, development can be achieved by rubbing gently with alcohol, applying cocoa-butter and letting it remain on over night. Every morning turn the cold spray on neck and chest. Don't chill the hands. All exercises that move the arms are helpful.

Getting fat to decamp from the calves of the legs requires faith and endless exercise. The best stunt is to jump rope. Kicking exercises will shake off adipose tissue from leglets, but they are too strenuous to be continued for any great length of time. Swimming is recommended. It's good for all muscles, all tissues; it is the ideal exercise.

When the neck is several shades darker than the complexion start on a ritual of lemon rubs. Cut a lemon in half, and rub the pulpy portion over the neck, all the way round. When the juice is well distributed, pat the neck briskly.

Wide, stubby finger nails should be permitted to grow fairly long they they must be filed to a pointed oval. Square nails must be oval and not pointed. The proper shaping of the finger nails make the fingers look long and tapering. Only a sharp, flexible file will make a good job of grooming. Poor files grind and tear and put the teeth on edge.

As health barometers the complexion and the eyes are always on the job. Jaundice not only discolors the skin, but yellows the whites of the eyes. Fever flushes the skin and makes the eye weak and watery. Constipation will dull the eyes and produce pallor. To look well, it is necessary to keep the human machine in good order.

How to Keep Well

Oral Hygiene Helps Many

ORAL HYGIENE is a term used to describe the care of the teeth, tongue, gums and tissues of the mouth.

The increase in knowledge of this branch of public health is remarkable. It will do as much to prevent disease and promote the health of the human race as almost any other health movement.

Dr. Copeland

It is not so many years ago that thousands of persons consulted the dentist only when there was toothache, or a broken tooth to repair. Even today much ignorance exists as to the effect of unhealthy conditions in the mouth may have upon the general health.

The first thing to do to prevent trouble from the mouth is to use the toothbrush often. Select a brush with bristles stiff enough to clean between the teeth but not harsh enough to bruise the gums. Care must be exercised not to injure the gums. Brush the teeth from the gums to the cutting edge, not across the teeth.

Consult your dentist about every six months. He will give you thorough examination and repair.

Many backward children have been given equality with normal children by the correction of mouth defects. There cannot be clear thinking if the body is being poisoned.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

P. S. Q.—What will make the face thin?

A.—It is difficult to reduce weight in any part of the body without reducing in general.

MRS. H. B. Q.—What is the cause and cure for lumbago?

A.—Lumbago may be due to some infection, strain or cold in the system. Applications of heat and massage will sometimes give relief. If this treatment does not benefit you try having the back strapped.

* * *

MRS. L. S. Q.—What causes a baby two and one-half years old to stammer?

A.—The baby will probably overcome this as she grows older.

R. S. Q.—What causes pain in head and back of nose and makes my palate sore?

A.—It would be wise to have a careful examination.

G. D. P. Q.—What do you advise for a leg which is smaller than the other, caused by paralysis?

Pointers on Etiquette

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Table Silver Arrangement

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Should the arrangement of the forks for a dinner table be such that one starts at the inside working outward or vice versa?

INTERESTED.

"Vice versa." The silver pieces should be placed on the table in the order in which they are to be used—so that the last one used is the one nearest the plate. "Begin at the outside and work toward the plate" is the usual slogan to remember. Always the oyster fork is farthest from the plate on the right of the plate and the soup spoon next, then the entree or fish knife, then the dinner knife nearest the plate. On the left side of the plate are first, that is, farthest from the plate, the entree or fish fork, then the dinner fork and then the salad fork. The utensils for the dessert course, a spoon and fork or knife and fork, are usually brought in with the dessert.

Informal Party Invitations

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When giving a party how should the invitations be written? (The party is to be given in the evening.)

It's a bit difficult, dear friend, to write an invitation to a party when I don't know what kind of party you are giving, but perhaps this will give you an idea of the form:

"Dear Grace:

"I should be so happy if you will come to a party at my house on Friday evening, the twentieth of August. It isn't to be a bit formal, just a gathering of nice friends like you. Please come in about 8 o'clock.

"Dearest wishes to you from us all.

"Affectionately yours,
"JANE."

Acknowledging an Introduction

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a girl is introduced to a boy at a dance, should she stand up if she has been sitting down?

CONSTANT READER.

When a boy is introduced to a girl at a dance she should not rise to acknowledge the introduction. She should bow and smile graciously and say, "How do you do?" or "How do you do, Mr. Mann?"

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette by readers.)

Advice on Problems of Heart and Home

—By BEATRICE FAIRFAX—

Only One in Her Heart

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of 17, am considered "cute" and have many "dates." men, but only one seems to remain in my heart. It is possible for me to see this young man every day. He is extremely popular and very good looking. He earns a good weekly salary. At one time, which is one month ago, I was his best girl. He is now to have heard about a girl who is my extreme opposite in looks and everything in general. What can I do to win my love back?

Beatrice Fairfax

GERRY.

Dear Gerry: There is little you can do to attract the roving eye of the born flirt. You are both rather young and I think with your personality you could well afford to forget this youth and attempt to attract other friends.

Night Rides With Girls

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 18 years of age and have a car. My parents objected to my going out at night with girl friends. I am not going out for the intention of getting married, but just for fun. Do you think I should have a right to go nights for a good time or not? Please answer me as soon as you can.

UNHAPPY.

Dear Unhappy: While I don't think much of the calamity howling section of the older generation who believe that the present youth are bent for perdition on wheels, I do not think that taking the "car out at night for the purpose of riding girls around the country" is a practice we could dispense with to the greater happiness of youth in general. I sympathize with you, dear boy, because I'm not so old that I haven't been on a few joy rides" myself, but it's still a mystery to me that we all came through with fenders, radiator and headlights intact. As a matter of fact, the sort of "fun" you get riding at high speed around the country generally has to be reinforced with bootleg liquor in order to deaden the sense of ever present danger and prepare you for reckless chances. I don't mean to lecture, but there are many who can profit by reading this, boys and girls, too, and there are too many other ways of having "fun" without taking your life in your hands to do it.

Treat Him With Contempt

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I enjoy reading your column and I thought I would ask you to solve the problem. I am 21 and have been out with different fellows. I met a fellow this summer who is very nice looking and knows it, as he thinks quite a lot of himself. I liked him at first and accepted his invitations, but the last time I went out riding with him he seemed too [illegible] the gentleman. After he took me home, for fun I said "Thanks for the buggy ride." He said "Oh, it wasn't so buggy."

Do you think I showed myself too eager for his company or that I was rude in making the remark?

He has been very impolite to me ever since. One day he sat next to me in church and on going out let the door slam in my face. I don't mind losing his friendship, but it hurts me when he is so rude.

PUZZLED.

Dear "Puzzled": You are quite justified in being offended at this young man's rude actions. His remark after the ride was very cheap and uncalled for, and letting a door slam in your face was an impossible breach of manners. Treat him with the contempt he deserves, and forget him. Such poor breeding doesn't deserve a second thought.

Be a "Good Fellow"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 19, am considered good looking, yet I can't seem to get myself a boy friend. I don't smoke, drink or pet. My cousins tell me I'm a little too stiff with a fellow. Can you tell me what I can do to attract boys? I also dress very well and talk nice, not using slang. Any help you can give me I'll appreciate very much.

LONESOME GIRL.

Dear Lonesome Girl—There are no rules that are guaranteed to work in all cases. Perhaps you are a little stiff. Boys need lots of encouragement and they are rather fearful of the girl who holds herself aloof and has no flaws. A cigarette once in a while cannot hurt you, and a bit of slang can often be helpful and amusing. Come down off your perch and be a good fellow. I'm sure you'll find it will help.

Wants Boy Friends

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of 15 and considered good looking. I have many girl friends, but I can't seem to get any boys for steady friends, so that I could form a so-called gang of girls and boys. I meet many boys through my girl friends but they don't seem to care for me. Please tell me what is wrong.

ANXIOUS TO KNOW.

Dear Anxious to Know—Why should you wish to form a "gang"? The gang spirit is very curious and often not very desirable. I think it rather tends to overwhelm individual personality and often will lead a person into doing things he does not like simply because he wants to keep in with the "gang." Be friendly and pleasant to everyone, boys and girls, and if you have one or two good friends consider yourself fortunate.

Miss Fairfax will be pleased to answer readers' questions regarding love problems which may be troubling them. Write on one side of the paper only.

Summer Styles for Hair

—By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON—

IN ALL the "long and short of it" concerning hair, the one thing that has been definitely decided is that the boyish bob is out—entirely and completely. Which isn't news to many of you because that mode has been disappearing so rapidly we hardly ever see it any more. But with the coming of real hot weather a great many women are apt to weaken and it is for this reason that I want to prepare you.

Women who have been letting their hair grow are having it cut shorter with each new, warmer day, and many of them have lost all sense of proportion in doing so. Just because you don't want long hair for the summer is not a good reason for having it cut off without thinking about the particular way you want it cut. It is possible, you know, to have hair so cut that as the weather grows cooler again this fall your hair will grow out into the correct manner for adaption to the winter mode.

Thinning the hair has a great deal to do with the way it fits the contour of the head and much to do with the coolness that means comfort during the hot weather.

As a matter of actual fact, long thinned out hair is much cooler than a shorter cut which hasn't been thinned out.

The only really short coiffure that has been approved by those who set fashions is the curled-all-over-the-head style, or the ringlet. And this way of doing the hair is perfectly stunning on young and old alike.

The young miss of 16 usually looks adorable with soft ringlets all over her head. The late twenties and early thirties appear years younger with this mode, and for the woman whose hair is either turning gray or is already white the mass of closely-cropped ringlets offer a softening effect for the features without losing any of the dignity which is so essential to the older woman.

Now, to gain the right kind of ringlet effect the hair must be thinned out some. This is to avoid bushiness and fuzziness because the infant curls must definitely be curls and not fuzz. Therefore, we have coolness and smartness combined.

Besides the ringlet mode, all of the longer, pushed-back off-the-face-and-ears modes are particularly good. They not only are cool during hot weather but they appear so and this adds a charm note worth considering.

Those of you who have been going in for knots, coiled ends and like treatment for your longish hair will have to find another way of disposing of the ends because buns of all kinds have passed away, unmourned by all who are interested in real beauty.

A soft roll, beginning just behind the ears and continuing all the way around the head in an unbroken line is the accepted thing now for the ends, whether they are turned up or under to gain the effect.

A soft, semi-swirl that permits a cluster of short ringlets just back of both ears also is quite good at present, and fashionists are hoping it will become more popular as the season progresses.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Mixed Grill

A WOMAN forms her opinion of herself from what she sees in her mirror; a man forms his opinion of himself from what he sees in women's eyes.

Every man expects to pay the wages of sin; but when it comes to paying the price of his follies and mistakes, he discovers that Fate is a heartless profiteer.

The world would be full of millionaires if all that energy, ingenuity and indomitable purpose which a man now devotes to concocting something with a kick in it, were concentrated on making fame and fortune.

The trouble with most husbands and wives is that they forget that they are merely connected by marriage, and not closely enough related to be insulting to one another, even before breakfast.

Many a man's idea of being noble and self-sacrificing is to renounce the woman he loves, because he can't afford to support a wife, a bootlegger, a club and a motor car all at the same time.

A modern girl does not go to the altar tremblingly. She figures that, if she can't get any happiness out of matrimony, at least she can get a little happiness out of alimony.

What the average man is looking for, is a woman who is just sufficiently fond of him to make him comfortable, and not so intensely fond of him as to make him uncomfortable.

When a girl laughs long and convulsively at all a man's witticisms it is a sign that they are soon to be married but that HE is not yet aware of the fact.

What profiteth it a woman though she gain the whole world if there is always going to be another woman in it?

EVENING AMERICAN MARKETS

News of Street — New York Stocks

Wall Street Devoted to Its Charts

Their Value Depends on Link With Other Information

—By JULIUS G. BERENS—

New York, Aug. 8.—What are the charts?

So many professional stock market traders follow charts that their readings often exert major temporary influence on prices. To many professionals a chart is their sole guide to market speculations.

Charts detailing the price movements of individual stocks, groups by industries, and the market as a whole are found in virtually every brokerage house. Particularly, often the expenditure of really sizeable sums are involved in their preparation. Staffs are frequently maintained for the sole purpose of preparing charts.

It is said that most of the gigantic market operations utilize charts.

Their intrinsic value from the standpoint of profit-production for the individual is a matter of considerable dispute even among speculators. The chartists, however, are firm in their devotion of their markings and drawings.

One outstanding difficulty, however, is that the charts disagree among themselves in interpreting the chart signals.

As a guide charts are invaluable. Stock charts when combined with information often assume tremendous value. Alone their value is questionable.

There are a few individuals, however, who made so successful a study and application of charts that their advice is eagerly sought by the most active market operators. One individual in particular, noted for his chart study, often receives transcontinental telephone calls from the most powerful speculators seeking his opinion.

The true chartist will proclaim that the chart alone, of all external guides, [illegible] a pool campaign. There is no denying that many charts disclose an almost scientific approach to a [illegible] deal and frequently display a systematic long lasting movement.

The difficulty lies, however, in the fact that most chartists attempt to read the future with minor regard for other considerations, such as developments within a company or a particular industry or even the market as a whole.

The writer knows of several so-called chartists who have made substantial financial successes in their market speculations. He knows of none, however, who were strictly chartists to the extent of excluding all other factors in their speculative transactions.

As a class chartists are little if any more successful than the average professional trader. The latter is classified as a group perhaps best with the tape reader, a seemingly indefatigable observer of virtually every individual transaction appearing on the ticker tape.

BUSINESS AID SEEN IN AUTO RESUMPTIONS

By FRANK H. MELOON

Wall and State St. observers believe the widespread and big scale resumption of operations in the automobile industry this week will very shortly be reflected in the business picture. Rather numerous corporations depend largely on automotive orders for their prosperity, and these are sure at least to feel the increase in demand from America's major consuming industry. One automotive company added 600 men to its payroll Wednesday and will add another 400 within 10 days. More news like this will help to beat away the fog of depression now covering many business fields.

Baldwin Locomotive has been acting [illegible] of late with a good recovery from the year's low. Slack of [illegible] has been due to operations of W. C. Durant, former Boston [illegible] wizard and his group, inspired by a recent betterment in earnings. During much of the Coolidge bull market Baldwin was one of the so-called "Four Horsemen" which led blue chip stocks to unprecedented heights. U. S. Steel, American Can and General Motors completed the famous quartet.

W. C. Durant

Although General Motors' equity [illegible] for $1,000,000,000 in the open market against well over $3,000,000,000 in [illegible] of last year, the percentage decline of [illegible] per cent shows [illegible] in comparison with the other major companies, which are down in some instances as much as 75 per cent.

Baldwin Locomotive shipments in July were $2,[illegible] against $2,[illegible] in July, 1929; seven months' [illegible] $5,005,000 against $10,327,000. Chairman Vauclain, who recently returned from Mexico City, said he did not look for any improvement in orders until September, but believed October would be better than September. Each succeeding month this year shows improvement over preceding month.

Shipments by Standard Steel Works, subsidiary of Baldwin Locomotive Works, for seven months ended July 31, were $5,3[illegible],000 against $5,216,000 in the same period last year. July shipments were $178,000 against $[illegible],000 in July, 1929. Unfilled orders totaled $118,[illegible] on Aug. 1, 1930, against $[illegible] on Aug. 1, 1929. Business booked in July was $101,000 against $178,000 in July, 1929, and for the year to date was $[illegible] against $[illegible],000 in same period of 1929.

Predicting that the most dangerous point in the world economic crisis will not occur this year, but in the summer of 1931, British Electrical & Allied Manufacturers' Association declares the crisis has been due to impossibility of making gold standard work effectively when natural economic conditions were upset by operation of reparations and American debt settlements.

These, it says, must be revised or restrict by [illegible] gold. Largely as a result of these factors United States and France have absorbed since January, 1929, the equivalent of world production of gold and in addition have deprived central banks in most primary markets of gold estimated at more than $[illegible],000,000. This gold, association argues, was required to finance consumption of goods and commodities necessary to maintenance of trade activity.

Recovery, it is stated, will coincide undoubtedly with revision of whole reparations system and on entrance of French long-term investment on a large scale into world economic adjustment. The [illegible] statement [illegible] received in Berlin.

Childs sales decreased in July with the decline attributed to the heat. This helps to illustrate what a big factor the weather is in business. Treasurer [illegible] declares an increase in Childs sales was noticeable on any cool day.

"Apparently the public's appetite will revert to normal when autumn arrives. As no section has escaped the heat wave, our managers in Denver, Buffalo, Montreal, Winnipeg and other localities where in the average summer we might expect cooler weather, all report similar circumstances this summer," he says.

1930	$5,217,400	1923	$3,629,000
1929	4,374,800	1922	7,068,000
1928	8,424,900	1921	3,313,000
1927	6,849,400	1920	3,490,000
1926	9,073,000	1919	6,313,000
1925	7,942,300	1918	2,801,000
1924	8,307,900

Sunday weather is of vast importance to the summer tourist industry in New England. The local weather bureau was unable today to offer us a clue as to what it might be.

Today's News in Wall Street

The Stock Market is attempting to diagnose the likely results of the confusing grain situation. There are two schools of thought in direct opposition to each other. One argues that the general grain situation will be stabilized by the destruction of surplus crops since the condition seems to demand use of wheat for corn with surplus wheat available. The other side argues that the destruction of crops must prove harmful to the general situation. A compromise attitude between these two extremes seems warranted.

1901 CROP FAILURE CITED IN WALL ST.

Students of history point to 1901 when failure of the corn crop followed the worst panic the stock exchange had known up to that date, precipitated by the Northern Pacific corner. A similar situation has developed in 1930, with an indicated corn crop failure following the record stock exchange collapse of last year. In 1901 the records show, despite the panic and the bad harvests of that year, stocks recovered quite speedily during the latter part of the year, some issues reaching their highest prices for 1901 subsequent to the panic and notwithstanding drought's [illegible] on agriculture.

DROUGHT PICTURE IS FOUND OVERDRAWN

One prominent Wall St. writer states:

"The grain market continues to occupy the attention of the speculative community at the moment, but it is becoming more apparent that it is going to take more than exaggerated reports of drought damage to complete stabilization and effect a definite turn in commodity prices. When any topic hits the front pages of the newspapers its effect must always be discounted, and this is particularly true of happenings influencing commodity or stock prices."

COMPANIES BUY AT LOW LEVELS

Both Corn Products and Solvents would benefit from any real crop damage that meant higher prices, as both are reported to have made big purchases at recent low levels.

GOLD DUST HAD GOOD HALF YEAR

It was predicted that Gold Dust would make public its earnings for the six months ended June 30 last, but officials of the company are said to have decided against such a procedure because they did not desire to establish a precedent. Actual results for the period are said to have been satisfactory.

BALDWIN LOCOMOTIVE IS MORE ACTIVE

Commission houses are keeping customers out of Baldwin because of the fear that when the group has completed its transactions the issue will again be allowed to drift for itself, says one writer.

U. S. STEEL TONNAGE MAY SHOW INCREASE

While no official or semi-official estimates have been made on the probable showing of unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation as of the end of July, the speculative element in the financial district holds that there was a moderate increase.

RADIO INDUSTRY AGAIN HOPEFUL

Hope pervades the radio industry after one of the worst periods it has had. Caught with the biggest inventories in history last fall, the companies had to dispose of them in a buyers market and with bankrupt concerns dumping sets for what they would bring. That leading companies have come through as well as they have is largely the result of the change from battery to plug-in set. Most of the distress inventory was of the latter variety and the public wanted this newer, more convenient type. Inventories liquidated since last fall are estimated at upward of $100,000,000 to $200,000,000. Big losses have been taken by practically every company.

That is history and now the survivors are getting ready for what they expect to be much better business in final half. New models, in many cases cheaper models with most up to date equipment, will be on the market.

BIG RUBBER FACE REORGANIZATION

New low prices for rubber, passing of its common dividend by Goodrich and prospect of another big company having to undergo financial reorganization are items of bad news for the rubber industry. Banking interests, it is understood, have been working for several weeks to save one of the larger companies from receivership but plans to merge or sell the properties have not been realized and early attempt to straighten out the company's situation by financial reorganization is in prospect.

NEW INTERESTS IN CELOTEX ACTIVE.

Strong financial interests are understood to be working out plans to establish Celotex Co. on a sound financial basis again. Difficulties because of affiliation with sugar growing properties, hit by depression in sugar, weakened its working capital position, notwithstanding sales showed steady expansion until first six months of this year. The new interests are confident a satisfactory reorganization can be effected which will enable the company to develop its profitable business in insulation and building material fields.

DURANT RESUMES BATTLE IN MOTORS

Since the new group of executives took hold of Durant Motors belief has prevailed that W. C. Durant had more than a passive interest in the company's financial affairs. The group was made up of executives active in building up the Dodge organization before Dillon, Read & Co. bought it. Consequently a great deal was looked for in automobile trade circles from the new management. They entered the picture at an unfortunate time, however, for not long after they took hold a general recession began in the automobile business. Although they accomplished an extensive manufacturing reorganization, little headway has been made in increasing sales. Now that these executives have resigned Durant apparently again has resumed the [illegible] he has carried on for about 10 years to make the company profitable.

COMPANY REPORTS FOR DAY STUDIED

Of 15 company reports published Thursday for various periods since December 31, 1929, five showed increases and 10 decreases compared with the corresponding periods a year earlier. The dividend action of 21 companies was as follows: 20 unchanged, one omitted.

R. C. A. PHOTOPHONE INSTALLATIONS UP

R. C. A. Photophone Co. for six months installed 775 sound equipment units in theaters or nearly twice the previous 16 months' total. First installation was made October 1, 1928, and to January 1, 1930, 119 were placed.

PRICES DROP TO LOWER LEVELS IN BOSTON

Prices dropped to lower levels in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. An early setback was partially recovered around midday but increased activity sent prices lower around the close. Changes ranged from 1 to nearly 4 points.

American Telephone dropped over 3 points, New Haven over 1, Stone & Webster over 3 and Eastern Steamship dipped around 2 points. Hathaway added 1⅛ and Venezuela Mexican was up 1¼.

Losses of a point or more were shown by the following issues: First National Stores, Railway Light & Security, United Shoe, Utilities Equities preferred, Waltham Watch preferred, Gillette and Edison.

Jackson Bros., Boesel & Co. will close their Boston branch at the close of business Aug. 15. This branch was opened early in February of this year.

Heywood-Wakefield Company has sent a notice to holders of first preferred stock inviting tenders of stock to be received up to 12 o'clock noon, Aug. 27. For the purpose of purchasing such stock the company has cash in the treasury resulting from inventory reduction.

The low price of copper is forcing some smaller, high-cost producers to suspend. Some estimate production this month will show a substantial decrease, as many larger mines will report less output than in any month since curtailment began.

Cambridge awarded to Central Trust at 101.228 $150,000 4 per cent street loan permanent pavement bonds dated August 1 and payable 1931 to 1940. Other bidders were Harvard Trust, 101.22; Harris, Forbes & Co., 101.22; Curtis & Sanger, 101.153; Stone & Webster and Blodget, Inc., 101.06; E. H. Rollins & Sons, 100.06, and Estabrook & Co., 100.911.

Century Ribbon's Profit Is Increased

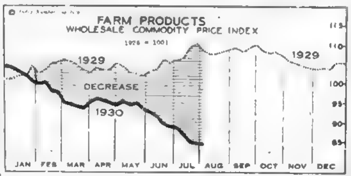

New York, Aug. 8.—Century Ribbon Mills, Inc., reports for six months ended June 30 profit of $[illegible],713 after depreciation, but before Federal taxes. In first half of 1929 net was $73,719 after Federal taxes, equal after dividend requirements on 7 per cent preferred to 24 cents a share on 100,000 shares of no-par common.

Rainbow Luminous Secures Contract

New York, Aug. 8.—A new operating contract has been entered into between Rainbow Luminous Products and General Outdoor Advertising Co. An order just received from this source is the largest Neon theatrical display, and advertises "Hell's Angels," a new feature motion picture to be shown simultaneously at two Broadway theaters. This display involves over a mile of Rainbow luminous tubes.

Decline in Farm Products

Farm Products Index Falls to New Low Ground

By HARLOW PETERS
(Irving Fisher Service)

Due to the long drop in wholesale prices the condition of the farmer has become one of real worry, and since the agricultural industry affects even the most completely citified person his plight has become general property. The Irving Fisher index on prices of farm products has dropped approximately 20 points since last December and is now in a greatly weakened state.

The over-supply of wheat is one of the chief difficulties. A possible solution of this condition will be to use such stocks for cattle fodder in view of the growing shortage of corn. Such a plan would serve to reduce the surplus, keep money in circulation, and raise wheat prices so that the farmer can be fairly paid for his labor.

Warner Quinlan Gets Oil Order

New York, Aug. 8.—Warner Quinlan Co. has contracted with Warner Bros. for delivery of 1,500,000 gallons of fuel oil for heating 20 Warner Bros. theaters in metropolitan area. Tentative contract for supplying 30 additional theaters in Connecticut has also been secured pending Warner Quinlan's completion of arrangements to service them from its Westchester bulk station.

BOSTON TRADE OPTIMISM SEEN BY DUN'S

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston that business remains quiet in general and there appears to be no marked change in July, as compared with the month previous.

"Pessimism appears to be slowly giving way to slight optimism, which is due largely to the belief that the low period of activity has been reached, and that the next turn will be for the better.

"Building conditions in New England remain in a depressed condition, although in Boston several large contracts have been awarded. In some quarters the impression prevails that the unusually easy money rate may provide a stimulating influence for construction work.

"Department store sales for July appear largely in seasonable merchandise, with little actual change being reported in value, as compared with that of last year for the same period.

"Conditions in the textile trade remain practically unchanged, while in the shoe industry business continues quiet, with activity still principally in women's moderate-priced lines."

Operating Schedule of Steel Lowered

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Dow, Jones & Co. reports that operating schedule of U. S. Steel Corp. has been reduced this week and ingot production of subsidiaries of the corporation is now at about 61 per cent of capacity, compared with a shade over 64 per cent last week and at the beginning of the current week. Smaller specifications against contracts on the books and new business in a limited amount are responsible for the reduction.

Airplane Taxis Run in England

Washington, Aug. 8.—Airplane taxis at a charge of approximately 24 cents a mile for a single passenger are now operating in seven English cities, according to a report received in the Department of Commerce from H. C. Schuette, assistant automotive trade commissioner at Paris. These air cabs, belonging to the National Flying Service, are serving London, Leeds, Hull, Nottingham, Blackpool and Scarborough.

Rail and Utility Bonds Show Well

New York, Aug. 8 (AP).—Railroad and utility bonds made a good showing in a quiet session today, as stock privilege issues turned reactionary in sympathy with a weak share market.

Warner Brothers 6s sold off to a new low for the year on a loss of more than a point and then recovered partially.

Pig Iron Production Holding Up Well

The total production of pig iron in both steel mill and merchant furnaces during the first six months of 1930 is compared with the tonnage in the corresponding periods of the past nine years. Source: Iron Age.

Pig iron tonnage in the first half of 1930 is only 3% under the five-year average of the corresponding periods from 1923 through 1928. As the business depression has been the most severe in the basic industries, and as pig iron production is one of the foremost barometers of conditions in these industries, this chart offers a typical illustration of the maximum extent of the recession.

Pig Iron Production, Long Tons, First Six Months

NEWS OF MAJOR MARKETS

Trends of the Day — New York List

Fresh Selling Wave Sweeps Shares to Lows for Month

New York, Aug. 8.—Bullish operators who have been working for a further advance in the stock market during the past few weeks received another setback today. A fresh wave of liquidation swept over the big exchange, forcing values of important shares to the lowest levels for a month or more.

Leaders generally were depressed 5 to 15 points or more, as the heaviest selling experienced in some days was loosened by such undermining developments as dividend cuts, slackening steel mill output and the sharp break in cotton of $2 to $3 a bale.

SALES VOLUME UP

Sales during the first two hours alone aggregated 1,378,000 shares, exceeding the average turnover for the past four full five-hour sessions. Rails and utilities were under particularly heavy pressure.

Real liquidation of long holdings of stock was said in brokerage circles to be in substantial volume, but professional traders were increasingly active on the short side of the market.

The loaning rates indicated that the rails, in particular, were choice targets of the professional bear element.

The speculative fraternity was still greatly confused over the probable effects of the severe drought. The government cotton report as of August 1 placed the crop about 300,000 bales higher than generally expected, which caused immediate important declines.

Although wheat made good progress during the early hours of trading, the collapse in cotton brought a moderate reaction, even in that market.

It was estimated that U. S. steel mills had slaackened from 64 per cent of capacity a few days ago to 61 per cent. The passing of Warner Bros.' common dividend, while rumored for several days, provided a shock in some quarters, for many traders had felt that at worst the cash payment would be reduced, or that it would be substituted for scrip.

RAILS ARE SOLD

The rails were liquidated on the theory that reduced crop movement would seriously impair earnings, as that in addition the roads would be asked to reduce train rates to relieve the agricultural areas.

The utilities have been under almost steady pressure for several days, resulting from the tendency toward lower power rates. Owing to heavy fixed charges, only moderate reductions in dates might sharply reduce earnings per share. The utility shares have still been selling at considerably higher ratios to earnings than other groups.

As during all bear movements unsettling rumors were circulated such as reports that investment trusts were liquidating electric power stocks, but confirmation was lacking.

The decline carried prices to the lowest levels since the forepart of July, most pivotal stocks breaking through their recent resistance points. Save for the lower levels in June, stocks generally were reduced to new low levels for the year.

LEADERS ARE LOWERED.

Such stocks as U. S. Steel, Radio and Standard of N. J., which have been held fairly steady during recent selling, soon dropped 3 points or more. General Motors and General Electric quickly lost about 2.

Warner Bros. was dropped about 7 points, going below 30, or about 50 points under the year's peak. Bullard was also a weak spot, dropping as much, on a poor earnings statement, and reaching levels about 50 points from the year's top of 74.

American Telephone, duPont, Stone & Webster, North American Corn Products, Eastman, Atlantic Coast Line, American Can and Vanadium soon lost 4 to 6. Worthington Pump lost more than 8. Losses of 2 to 4 points in the rails were numerous.

Call money renewed at 2 per cent again, after two days of renewals at 2½.

New bond offerings of the week totaled $70,940,000, compared with $118,958,000 last week and $22,990,000 in the corresponding week last year.

The market remained under the whip of the bears in the final hour when losses weresharply extended, many shares selling 5 to 15 points under the previous close.

J. I. Case was off more than 15, Worthington Pump 14, Vanadium Steel 11, Auburn Auto 12, American Can 8, American Telephone 7 and U. S. Steel over 5.

The close was weak.

Corn Takes Plunge in Chicago's Pit

Chicago, Aug. 8—Corn prices took a plunge today, breaking as much as 7⅛ cents a bushel on receipt of long range weather forecasts from Washington seeing a possible break in the drought by the middle of next week.

Wheat sagged, too, but exhibited more stubborn resistance than corn and finished irregular from ¼ cent lower to ½ cent higher than yesterday, corn lost from 1½ to 2 cents a bushel for the day.

July Auto Output 275,298 Vehicles

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—The July automobile output in the United States and Canada is estimated by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce at 275,298 cars and trucks, against 350,656 in June and 518,301 in July last year. For the first seven months production was estimated at 2,605,529, against 3,931,105.

Earnings for 289 Companies Studied

New York, Aug. 8 (AP)—Total earnings for 289 companies for the first half show a decrease of 24 per cent. from the 1929 aggregate, as compared with a 20 per cent. decline covering 134 companies reported earlier, Standard Statistics Company says. The bulletin adds that:

"In the face of this less favorable showing, however, a substantial number of concerns are still reporting gains over a year ago, the total of such individual increases now amounting to 104."

Bon Ami Profits for Quarter Rise

New York, Aug. 8—Report of Bon Ami Co. for six months ended June 30, 1930, shows net profit of $700,467. This compares with $733,390 in first half of 1924. For the quarter ended June 30, net profit was $379,307 after charges, equal to $1.77 a share on class A and $1.01 a share on class B, against $321,160 or 1.48 share on class A and 86 cents a share on class B stock in preceding quarter.

SIX PER CENT

J. N., Worcester—I own $2,000 Morris Plan 6s and want to invest $2,000 at 6 per cent. I shall keep $1,200 cash in the savings bank.

Ans.—That is fine. You could get $120 annually, or 6 per cent, on ten shares each Standard Gas & Electric $6 preferred, costing about $2,000. Morris Plan certififcates are sound.

INVEST $4,000

A. J., Boston—I am a reader of your paper and want to invest $6,000, now in a savings bank. I prefer bonds to stocks.

Ans.—Buy $2,000 each S. W. Straus first mortgage 6s and State Title & Mortgage 5½s. The annual income is $230. Keep the other $2,000 in the savings bank for emergencies.

LINDBERGH WILL BROADCAST TONIGHT

Will Give Aviation Talk From New York on Big Hookup

Col. Lindbergh's address on international aviation will be heard over 156 stations in the United States, Canada and Great Britain, including the local stations WNAC WBZA and WEEI. This speech, which will be heard tonight at 11 o'clock, will also be given earlier in the day through Columbia short-wave stations, so that the entire world may hear the flier's message. The potential audience is estimated at 100 million people.

Heretofore world broadcasts have been heard by as many people, but they have been sent out by separate chains. Lindbergh's 15-minute talk will be relayed from the Columbia studios to stations on their network and by special arrangements to the stations on the NBC red and blue network, as well as by direct telephone connection with WABC. This unusual arrangement was made at the request of Col. Lindbergh, who desires that his recommendation for world aviation reach the largest possible audience.

Never before has Lindbergh spoken from a radio studio, his previous microphone experience having been with talks at broadcast public functions. His speech tonight will be an elaboration on the recommendation for promoting international air transport recently made by him at the request of the League of Nations.

Earl of Birkenhead Has Restless Night

London, Aug. 8 (AP)—The Earl of Birkenhead, who is ill with bronchial pneumonia, passed a restless night. It was said, however, that his strength was maintained.

Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

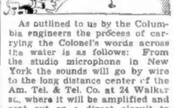

Regardless of devastating heat, urgent business or social affairs, vacations or the thousand and one things which occupy the human family through the day, a very great number of persons both on this northern hemisphere and in Europe will cease whatever occupies them at the moment and tune in on the world's hero, Col. Charles Lindbergh, who will make his first formal radio talk.

For 15 minutes, from 11 to 11:15 o'clock tonight, the colonel will face the microphone in the Columbia System's main studio in New York, coming through their network to the Shepard Stores station, WNAC. The broadcast will also be picked up by the National Broadcasting Co. and sent out on their Blue and Red network, of which WBZ-WBZA and WEEI are the local outlets.

As a matter of fact Col. Lindbergh will be on the air twice today; the night broadcast as aforestated and previous to that time at 4:25 in the afternoon, when his talk is to be transmitted to Europe and will not be heard in this country.

This earlier broadcast will be made through the Columbia System station W2XE, and transmitted to England over the radio telephone circuit operated by the American Tel. & Tel. Co. and the British Post Office for commercial transatlantic telephone service.

While the hookup for circulating his broadcast throughout the vast area of this country and Canada is an involved engineering feat, and is technical beyond our understanding, the complications accompanying the feat of making his words plainly heard through Europe and Australia go into realms of radio technicalities, which the layman — including newspapermen—cannot hope to enter.

As outlined to us by the Columbia engineers the process of carrying the Colonel's words across the water is as follows: From the studio microphone in New York the sounds will go by wire to the long distance center of the Am. Tel. & Tel. Co. at 24 Walker st., where it will be amplified and sent out on a direct circuit to one of the company's radio telephone transmitting stations.

Weather will enter into the engineers' problems. Whether the long wave station at Rocky Point, R. I., will be used, or the short wave station at Lawrenceville, N. J., utilized will depend upon atmospheric conditions prevailing over the Atlantic. If Rocky Point is used, 5000 meters; if Lawrenceville, between 14 and 33 meters.

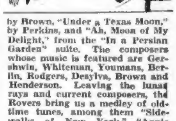

At the radio station the voice currents are amplified millions of times and "blended" with a high-voltage current, powerful to bridge the gap to Europe. The Colonel's words will be picked up on the other side by one of the receiving stations of the British Post Office which operates the telephone system of Great Britain.

From the receiving station, the speaker's words travel over a wire line through the London "trunk exchange," the Post Office's long distance center, to Station L2, key station of the British Broadcasting System.

The radio circuit here used, bridges a distance of approximately 3400 miles. With the wire links this makes a combined wire and radio circuit between Columbia headquarters and the British Broadcasting Corporation's station of more that 3600 miles.

When the Gold Medal Fast Freight program is heard over WNAC at 10:30 tonight the participants dedicate their half-hour to New York city and it won't take three freight loads of guesses to chance upon the main dedication song. It's none other than that the erosive "Maine Stein Song." Not because it is a New York product, but on account of its being played in Manhattan on the average of eight times a minute, will this number be the all-important selection. Of course, it is inevitable that "Sidewalks of New York" will be played.

Three moons, two of them from Tin Pan Alley and one from Persia, will shine down on the Raleigh Revue tonight at 10:30 over WEEI when Bill Daly and his boys offer a musical cross section of nearly all the composers who have set Broadway humming in recent years. The moons are "The Moon Is Low," by Brown, "Under a Texas Moon," by Perkins, and "Ah, Moon of My Delight," from the "In a Persian Garden" suite. The composers whose music is featured are Gershwin, Whiteman, Youmans, Berlin, Rodgers, Desylva, Brown and Henderson. Leaving the lunar rays and current composers, the Rovers bring us a medley of old-time tunes, among them "Sidewalks of New York," "Annie Rooney" and "Sweet Rosy O'Grady."

RADIO Personalities

There are 841 employes in the NBC studios There were only 23 seven years ago. . . . BILLY WIRGES, son of Wm. F. Wirges, shows signs of following in his director-father's footsteps. Recently he was given a chance to direct the Manger Orchestra and so skillfully did he wave the stick that Boston's Joe Rines signed him up for a week's engagement. . . . PETER BILJO of Around the Samovar' owns a Russian curiosity shop. . . . So complete is DOMENICO SAVINO'S concentration that he is able to transcribe music while an orchestra plays another selection. . . . 90,000 copies of Bert Lown's song, "By Bye Blues," have been sold. . . . "Finders Keepers," to be heard over NBC network tomorrow night, is the first GEORGE KELLEY production ever heard on the ether. . . . LAURANCE GRATTAN, villian of Showboat, says playing his type of role is an outlet for an otherwise suppressed desire to be wicked. . . . FLO RICHARDSON, girl orchestra leader of NBC artists' service, is a swell violinist. . . . REINARD WERRENRATH is taking up painting on the side. By that he means painting the side of his Adirondacks summer house. . . . Having their heads sculptored is the latest fad among radio artists.

Doubling for Love

A sailor on leave? But his hands did not look as if they belonged to a sailor. Strong, wiry hands, long-fingered, with the knuckles skinned and one half-turned palm showing fiery blisters. A sailor's palm would be calloused—long hardened beyond the possibility of blisters.

This was none of Judy's affair, however. She had done her duty satisfied her curiosity as well. Perhaps it was a mere dream, the snarling voices, the shots, even the dark-eyed young fellow walking away so debonairely.

Only she knew it was not a dream ... venture—the first she ever had met—oh, and it led nowhere! Dreams were better; you could make them take you wherever you wished to go.

She was on the boat deck in time to see the crowd come back. Betsy Rowe still hanging to the arm of the dashing third officer; Ma all fluttery with her helpless look led up the plank by the dazzled Mr. Tennant. No Kit Camp . . .

Judy was lying on the bed, hands against her eyes when Ma Archer came in, demanded in quick concern if she were all right.

"Have a nice day, lamb? Betsy all right? Is it a beautiful vacation?"

"Course, Ma—why not? Doing a little plain and fancy thinking about Halifax is all and I'll take it kindly if you'll not so much as speak."

"But its time to dress, Judy. Do let me help you just this once—."

Judy was preoccupied: Judy was trying to puzzle out the mystery of the Public Gardens. And Ma Archer took advantage of her absent-mindedness. Ma Archer persuaded a frock of turquoise crepe and lace over Judy's head and a clever little pair of embroidered turquoise slippers on her feet.

Ma Archer loosened waves and pulled out ringlets and presently led a young beauty who appeared to be wearing tortoise-shell spectacles for a joke to the dining saloon.

Ma Archer herself looked happier, more girlish than Judy remembered. Judy thought of this, wondered vaguely why Mr. Tennant had moved to their table, and got away as soon as she could. She wished to think; she wanted to be somewhere by herself. She wrapped up, since they now were approaching the zone of no summer and started outdoors.

She braced herself against the rise and fall, put her head down to shut out the brassy glare of the setting sun. She made her way along the deck, stopped finally before her chair, noted that the next one, vacant from New York was filled now.

She gave the man who lounged there a glance—caught a breath like a sob—lost her balance with the pitching of the ship. Her head jerked suddenly and the tortoise-rimmed spectacles slid off her nose and shattered at his feet.

NOTICE TO AUTOMOBILE OWNERS!

Right now the automobile merchants of Greater Boston are making drastic price reductions on all Used Cars for the sole purpose of clearing their salesroom floors.

To the man owning an old model car such as 1924, 1925 or 1926, we offer the following suggestion that he may realize the utmost on his present investment toward the purchase of a late model Used Car.

The automobile merchant cannot make a large allowance on these older cars, but you can sell the car independently of him, and after receiving the down payment, the dealer from whom you plan to buy a late model Used Car can finance the balance of the payments owing to you.

Certainly this is a fair arrangement. It permits you to buy a later model car than the one you now own, plus taking advantage of the drastic price reductions now in effect, and allows the dealer to give you an additional discount because he does not have to pay a salesman's commission on the resale of your old car.

Remember, the dealers have reduced prices on all Used Cars to clear their salesrooms.

LOOK, SEE, TRY and BUY TODAY!!

NO CASH! DOWN PAYMENT

FRIDAY-SATURDAY

If your present car is a fairly late model and in good condition, we will accept it as down payment toward any used car you select.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Speeding the Mails

Boston Has a Fine Opportunity

New York City sticks its chest out fully a foot because of the latest exploit of aquatic aviation—a mailplane catapulted from the deck of the liner Bremen landed its important cargo of fast mail in that city and had it ready for delivery seven hours before the arrival of the liner.

Local pride is justifiable; and it is worthy of rivalry.

If Boston were made a port of entry, that mail could be sent here, dispatched to New York by our regular airmail lines, arriving there a half-day earlier. Western mail could be landed in Chicago twenty-four hours in advance of the present record.

The North German Lloyd, we are informed, is not only willing but eager to avail itself of the superior position of Boston for the transit of fast mail.

Accordingly, we suggest that Mayor Curley, the Boston Chamber of Commerce and the other societies presumably concerned in the best interests of Boston place this case before Postmaster-General Brown. Perhaps they could find him free from his Southern political patronage problems for a few moments and arouse him to the necessity of improving the postal facilities of this country.

The Coast Guard

It Has No Choice

One hundred and forty years old, the United States Coast Guard enters on another year of service to seafarers of all nations. It is a pity that this old and honorable organization is best known to the public for shooting at rum-runners while its infinitely more important work of saving lives and making navigation safer is unnoticed or unknown.

The Coast Guard is always at hand when the S O S crackles out from distressed steamers. Its cutters patrol our shores from Maine to Alaska. Its men dare death to rescue those imperilled on the seas. It has done well in war and peace, from the earliest days of the Republic.

Its prohibition assignment was forced on it. Probably not 1 per cent of its officers or men believe in the noble experiment. They have been forced to bear the stigma of an unpopular and unworkable law. They have no option but to obey orders.

And so well do they obey that as these lines are written, word comes of the sinking of one of their own boats and the killing of one of their own number—thanks to the murderous policy of "shoot first, investigate afterward."

If morale suffers, don't blame the Coast Guard only. A squadron of archangels on prohibition duty would soon lose its morale.

Clipping Our Wings

But Why Worry?

The Graf Zeppelin having circumnavigated the globe, and the R-100 having crossed the Atlantic, it is suggested by President Hoover that now is a good time for the United States to cut its dirigible program IN HALF.

Spokesmen for the President explain that this would save the United States four or five million dollars.

No doubt about that—it would. It would also set us even farther back in naval aviation than we are now, and advance England, Germany and France just that much.

We have plenty of the helium gas used for dirigibles, an advantage over other nations.

It is most obliging of us, therefore, not to use it.

As for the little question of national defense, which seems to have escaped Presidential attention, why worry about that?

The Kellogg pact will always protect us, and we can put the four million into prohibition enforcement, or a new commission, or something.

Bounding the Universe

A Professor Tries It

If you have wondered just how big the universe is, here is the answer. It has a radius of 9,500,000,000,000,000,000,000 miles. Multiply that by two and you get its diameter—if you have paper enough to write the figures on.

The gentleman who has so kindly measured the universe for you is Professor Wilhelm de Sitter, of the University of Leyden, Holland. He has just forwarded the figures to the National Academy of Science in Washington.

The professor modestly admits that as his calculations are only approximate, he may be a few miles out, one way or another.

The question of what is outside the universe he clears up easily by saying that there is nothing—"an unimaginable nothing, not even time nor space."

So that's settled, and we can all get back to business.

PASSING COMMENT

By Hal Coffman

McINTYRE ABROAD -:- By O. O. McIntyre

BERLIN—Berlin is not, of course, so gay as in pre-war days of swollen wealth, but there are no surface indications of depression from the vast unemployment. The big problem is to absorb growth, the city having grown from 3,000,000 to 4,500,000 since the war.

The jobless receive a weekly dole of $7.50, and if one knows Berlin it is easy to live comfortably on that. I visited an American newspaper correspondent whose $40 a month apartment would cost him $200 a month in New York. With two servants and a car his expenses total $50 a week. Cafe life is dead at night but brisk during the day.

In warm weather tables are moved to sidewalks and a white picket fence is set around them. The fence is a little puzzling. It offers no privacy and is a barrier getting in and out. The music is invariably of a high order. I have heard no jazz here and you cannot imagine how pleasant that is.

The popular restaurants are those like the Vaterland, seating from 2000 to 6000. Vaterland has eight different cafes under an illuminated whirling roof. It offers scenes and music from Seville to Stamboul. Bohemian cafes are in a section called Kurfurstendamm. Here Rupert Brooke wrote "Grantchester."

Last night we visited House on-Sea, on the edge of a silvery lake near Potsdam. A huge platter of flaming red lobsters is brought for personal selection. I selected one that reminded me of Paul Whiteman on a hot night and it was sliced expertly on a special board at my side.

Melons, too, are brought without the seedy interiors removed and they disembowel them before your eyes—a sort of Epicurean rite that didn't whip my appetite. The most expensive restaurant of all, however, is Hechler's. Hugo Stinnes, the Rockefeller of Germany, was a regular client.

It seats only 80 and there are no prices on the menu. You pay as you like when you go out. If you do not pay, your bill shows up magically by post. There is no record of anyone leaving Germany without settling with Hechler's, an extraordinary tribute in itself. Father and son wait on tables.

The first de luxe—and still the "de luxiest" hotel—in Berlin is the Adlon at No. 1, Unter den Linden, erected 22 years ago with the Kaiser laying the corner stone. It is conducted by Louis Adlon, son of the founder, a sportsman and owner of fast motor cars. The Adlon is equipped with beds of hand chipped bronze and things like that. A bust of the unhorsed Kaiser stands in the lobby. But it should instruct its newsstand not to try to sell dirty books to Americans, even if they are from Gallipolis, Ohio.

A notable example of German thrift is in front of one of the big department stores. There is an outside booth where cigar smokers may snuff out their lighted ends and check them until they do their shopping. There is, of course, no tipping for the service.

At the zoo, in almost the heart of town, one may take the cure of any of famous spas in bottled form. Those who go in for the innovation must be on hand at 6 a. m. to drink the prescribed potions and partake of the same breakfasts served at Baden-Baden, Carlsbad or any of the others. A huge orchestra renders operatic selections.

In beer shops at 7 in the evening appear radish sellers in short leather pants and with bare legs selling a long radish that is scraped with all the finesse of a diamond cutter. They execute the job perspiring freely and breathing heavily and receive 20 pfennings, a nickel, for the finished article. The radishes are grown near Munich, and after one bite I glanced about for a fire box.

Berlin bars are the most aristocratic in the world and their international bartenders are not only linguists but often men of education. The bars are richly carpeted, offering arm chairs in fierce velours, small orchestras, waiters in full evening dress and bar maids with a dash of sex appeal. They are modestly lighted and a bit dreary—suggesting habitues are wrestling like New York night club patrons with the age-old problem of trying futilely to escape from themselves.

The Fraulein, engaged for the stay here, pops in at breakfast each morning to curtsey and exclaim, "Wish you a most excellent appetite." She has had no difficulty whatever so far in getting her wish.

H. G. Wells Writes

ON "THE SCIENCE OF LIFE"

THERE IS a tale of a Catholic Cousin, a lady of uncertain age, who during confession said she must avow one sin, that of looking in the glass every morning and repeating "every day in every way I grow more and more lovely."

To which her confessor drily replied, "Madam, that is not a sin; that is a mistake." But to make such an assertion about the influences of suggestion on the unborn child is not only a mistake; it begins to be a sin; for there is no excuse in the present state of knowledge for making it, and it rousses hopes that cannot be fulfilled.

It is right and proper that an expectant mother should take every possible care of her general health, but hygiene should be rational and as free as possible from superstition.

The sooner the belief in maternal impressions and the suggestibility of embryos disappears, the better; it can result in nothing but waste time and a crop of false hopes, unnecessary fears and imaginary troubles.

Breeders cherish many other unwarranted beliefs. There is an amusing tangle of myths about sex-determination which will be touched on later.

H. G. Wells

Another very widespread belief is that there exists a quality called "vigor," a vigor that can be seen in the health and strength and activity of the individual creature, which enables it to stamp its own personal characteristics more indelibly on its offspring.

Suppose, for example, we mate a black bull with a red cow; this belief would have it that if the bull is strong and vigorous, the chance of black calves will be greater than if he is weak and ailing. And all sorts of further embroideries of the theory have been made. Here again, however, careful experiment has shown that there is nothing in the idea.

So long, it appears, as the organism is not so feeble as to be incapable of reproduction, the genes which it transmits are working genes and their shuffling and assortment goes on in the usual way.

We do not, of course, imply that all sires have equal powers of affecting the offspring. Some have a higher proportion of dominant genes than others, and will therefore be responsible for more of the characters that appear in the offspring.

Ladies, You NEED Not Grow Old

At Least NOT IN SPIRIT

This is a picture to inspire and encourage women drifting past the fifties into what is mistakenly called "old age." There is NO old age for women or men that refuse to grow old.

When you see a tree, GREEN AT THE TOP, you don't call it "an old tree." You say, "That's a FINE tree."

The more years it has stood, retaining its strength and green color AT THE TOP the more you respect it.

So with human beings. While the head remains active, the will keen, THE SPIRIT UNDAUNTED, they are not old.

Lady Oxford and Asquith walks, as you see, with the step of a sixteen-year-old girl. She has the FIGURE of youth, and all of youth's energy and determination.

Nothing frightened her, although in her day she has frightened several, especially when she wrote her book and described with frankness the social struggligns of the late Lord Curzon and others that came under her microscope.

LADY OXFORD AND ASQUITH, SEVERAL TIMES A GRANDMOTHER, NO "OLD AGE" HERE

As the famous "Margot" Tennant, Lady Oxford and Asquith before her marriage led, with a big lead, the intelligent and brilliant young men and women of England.

Not to know her was like not knowing Notre Dame in Paris, or Vesuvius in Naples.

Then she married Asquith, and he became Prime Minister.

She has grown children, brilliant like herself—young Asquith was the most conspicuously successful individual in the production of moving pictures in England, having turned his head in that direction, and her daughter, the Princess Bibesco, a brilliant writer.

Washington will not soon forget the time she spent there, when her husband was Rumanian Ambassador.

It is not true that "We are as old as we feel." Some very silly old people feel very young.

But we really are AS YOUNG AS OUR MINDS ARE.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Does the Wife's Job Pay?

CAN A YOUNG COUPLE SAVE MORE IF THEY BOTH WORK?

DOES THE YOUNG WIFE'S PAY CHECK REALLY SWELL THE FAMILY EXCHEQUER?

Thousands of working wives will protest that it does.

"Why, we couldn't get along at all if I didn't work," they'll cry. And they really believe it.

Louise Temple believed that, too—once. Her letter lies before me as I write. It is—though she never guessed this when she wrote it—much more than a letter. It's sociological data. The sort that makes history some day. Read it. Then think honestly about the homes you know where both wife and husband work. Does it really pay? Or are their earnings more than offset by additional expenses in clothes, rent and food?

Elsie Robinson

And those priceless things—babies, peace and the quiet bond that comes with the years—are those homes richer in such treasure? Or are they going deeper into the red each year?

DEAR ELSIE ROBINSON:

You ask if wives should work. I have only one answer—NO! I am one of the legion of working wives, and I know.

My husband and I have been married nearly five years. We have saved a little, but I am sure that we could have had as much in the bank had I never worked a day. The more we make the more we spend. And yet we try so hard to be economical.

In all these debates about whether wives should work you hear so much about what a wife earns. . . . BUT YOU NEVER HEAR ABOUT WHAT HER JOB COSTS. YET ACTUALLY A WIFE'S JOB USUALLY ADDS TO THE HOUSEHOLD EXPENSES.

In the first place, if a woman works in an office she usually has to be near the business center, and that means higher rent. Then she has to dress better—much better. A woman can wear out her old clothes around a home. She can't in an office. It costs even the simply dressed office girl three times as much to dress as it does the housewife. And don't forget dry cleaning and extra shoes and car fare. And, biggest of all, is the problem of cooking and sewing. The woman who works in an office, unless she's unusually strong and clever, buys ready-made clothes and ready-made food. And you know the cost of that.

My own experience is typical. I know dozens of working wives who could tell the same tale. When I first started to work it was to be just for a year or two in order to save for a home and get money together for a couple of babies. The babies are still far off, and I'm growing old. Then I broke down and had to stay home for nearly a year, but as soon as I could walk I was back on the job. And are we getting happier, as married people should? I'll say we're not. Our life seems to be filled with petty spats. I am so tired all the time. I get mad because my hours are longer than my husband's and yet I have all the house-work to do when I get back at 7.

But if I talk of stopping now the cry is "How can we live?"

It is true I might not have so many clothes if I stopped and he probably couldn't play golf, but we could live—yes, and save, too. Our salaries are small, too, but it can be done.

IF I HAD IT TO DO OVER AGAIN I WOULD LIVE IN A SINGLE ROOM AND EAT CHEESE AND CRACKERS RATHER THAN WORK OUTSIDE MY HOME. IT DOESN'T PAY—EITHER IN MONEY OR THE THINGS THAT ARE WORTH MORE THAN MONEY.

Well——? What's YOUR answer?
